Butler First Woman On Pa. DHIA Board

C.J. HOUGHTALING
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — With more and more women advancing beyond the home to make their mark in the world, it was only a matter of time before the state DHIA seated its first woman on the board. Marian Butler is that woman.

Elected in January and seated officially in April, this slender woman with short, no-nonsense hair and large eyes that seem to take in everything represents District 18 which includes Tioga, Potter, and McKean counties.

Butler came to the board well-prepared, having paid her dues at the local level as a bookkeeper and treasurer for three years before her county, Tioga, merged with the state board.

Since that merger, the local association became known as the Tioga County DHIA Advisory Council, maintaining a board of 12 members, which still includes Marian. She is also on the Technicians Training and Certification Advisory Committee, a position

Lancaster DHIA To Build Lab

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — The board of directors of the Lancaster DHIA voted Tuesday evening to construct a milk sample testing laboratory at the home of Jay Mylin, manager.

The idea behind the move is to provide quick turn-around on information obtained from the milk sample. With the close proximity of the laboratory to the local supervisors, samples can be brought to the lab the same day they are taken. By running the sample each day, the test results can be transferred to Raleigh by computer/telephone, processed and returned to Manheim by evening. Theoretically, on herds close to the lab, the reports could be available to the herd owner the same day the sample was taken. More likely, the reports will be mailed to the farmer the next morning.

At present the Lancaster association has 59,000 cows on test with an average of 47,000 samples per month. Mylin emphasized that they were getting quality service at Mid-East and before that at Pennsylvania. But this move became feasible because of the reduced time and effort needed to transport samples. The local association plans to continue the present working relationship with Mid-East for quality certification.

Testing the milk close-by reminds older dairymen of earlier times when each "tester" did his own lab work on the farm and had the information available for the owner the same day. With a close lab and modern transfer of information, the short turn-around time for information back to the dairymen can be now accomplished again.

Lancaster Tobacco Industry May Be Taxed Out Of Existence

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The president of Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Company, Claude Martin, told a group of farmers and agri-business leaders that the proposed taxes in President Clinton's health care package would wipe out the tobacco industry in Lancaster County.

Speaking at the Ag Issues Forum Thursday morning, Martin said that based on industry statistics, the price increase that would be needed from the hidden tax proposals in the national health care plan would make the cigar and chewing tobacco industry "go away." And he predicted that much of the cigarette industry would move offshore.

Martin said the proposed taxes include increases of: 10,417% on chewing tobacco; 3,472% on snuff; 3,333% on cigars; 1,852% on pipe tobacco, and 313% on cigarettes. "If they continue to restrict and tax tobacco products to the extent they propose, farmers in Lancaster County will need to look for another source of revenue,"

Farmers were busy planting tobacco this week, but an industry leader says taxes may force the local industry out of existence. This Lancaster County farm scene was recorded Monday afternoon on N. Shirk Road, northwest of New Holland. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

BVD Update: Get Serious On Biosecurity

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — On May 16, 1994, the Field Investigation Unit (FIU), part of the Animal Diagnostic Laboratory (ADL) at Penn State, was contacted by a county agent in northwestern Pennsylvania regarding possible multiple herd problems with a virulent disease, likely Bovine Virus Diarrhea (BVD).

The lab noted that a herd had been diagnosed with BVD in an adjoining county. The regional

Thrips May Cause Berry Problem

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — An apparent heavy infestation of Eastern Flowers Thrips (EFT) has been discovered and identified throughout Lancaster County and may be evident in many other counties, though information is yet too insufficient to make any kind of accurate determination as to the extent the pest has spread.

According to Lancaster County Extension Horticulturalist Bruce Hellerick, he discovered the infestation after receiving a request to inspect some commercial strawberry fields that had malformed, dull and unthrifty fruit and somewhat damaged plants.

The producers had requested the help when they became stymied at the apparent lack of a cause for the damage.

That is a sign of the almost invisible thrips; a type of insect that requires a strong hand lens to detect, or a knowledge of what to look for with the naked eye.

In fact, those who are attempting to determine the cause and extent of damage said Thursday

Growers Should Control Peach Borer, Nematodes

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW SMITHVILLE (Lehigh Co.) — Having survived a brutal winter that devastated the peach crop statewide, commercial growers face yet more potential adversaries: peach tree borers and nematodes.

But since little of the crop bore fruit for this season — like the saying goes, "if you're given a lemon, make lemonade" — growers can use the heart of the harvest season to effectively deal with the pest problems.

That was the message delivered

Trucklot buying interest was irregular. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts with tenders from nearby production areas were adequate and traded at the 200 level. Some buying interest for late week deliveries and for next two weeks was not yet booked. Breast cutlets without tenders was irregularly distributed with most of the trades reported at 1.95. Some product was offered on an FOB price basis. The trade sentiment was reported as steady. Line run breasts were in close balance with some regular commitments shorted today. Trading was at steady prices but the undertone was fully steady. Leg quarters were under pressure.

VALLEY FRESH FOODS

RELIES ON THE Big Dutchman®

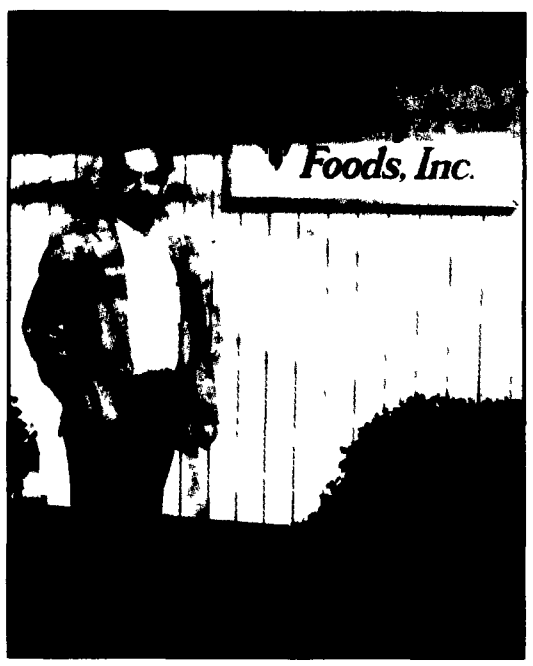
CHAIN FEEDING SYSTEM



Valley Fresh Foods' complexes in Turlock, California, Townsend, Montana; Woodburn, Oregon, and Rochester, Washington house 2 5 million birds, with several houses of Big Dutchman Cage Systems

Joe Arias, President of Valley Fresh Foods, Inc believes his decision to use Big Dutchman Cage Systems with Chain Feeding is right on the money. Mr. Arias has been changing over to Big Dutchman for several years and has plans to continue to equip future houses with Big Dutchman systems. The bottom line, he says, "is that Big Dutchman's chain feeding system promotes better management flexibility that equates to higher profits."

Arias chose the Big Dutchman chain system because it handles the feed capacities he needs for his high bird density houses It is easy to adjust the amount of feed and feeding schedule as needed when making feed formulation changes It all adds up to more eggs and better feed conversion

The computer print-outs from the current test* in Turlock, California, confirm to Mr Arias his decision to go with Big Dutchman Chain Feeding provides him with more eggs, better feed conversion and fewer undergrades than drag auger feeding.

*Test house contains both the Big Dutchman chain feeding system and Chore-Time's drag auger system. It houses sister birds and other parameters that are equal

WHEAT 4 TO 19 CENTS HIGHER. CORN 2 TO 5 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM 6 TO 13 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 4 TO 7 CENTS HIGHER. TRADERS AWAIT USDA'S 1994 WINTER CROP PRODUCTION RE- PORT. CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES CONTINUED TO CLIMB AS FORECASTERS PREDICT THE POSS- IBILITY FOR A HIGH PRESSURE SYSTEM TO SETTLE OVER THE MIDWEST LATE NEXT WEEK. THIS WOULD CAUSE THE RETURN OF HOT, DRY CONDITIONS TO BEAN AND CORN CROPS. RECENT RAINFALL IN THE CORN BELT AREAS HAVE BEEN VERY BENEFICIAL TO NEWLY PLANTED CROPS. LIGHT EXPORT DEMAND SUPPORTED SOYBEAN PRICES.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

PROMISES, PROMISES

Much is made of the retaliation of women scorned, but apparently menfolk belong to that club, too. In fact, the first breach-of-promise suit in this country was instituted by a man. On June 14, 1623, in the Virginia Council of State, Charles City, Virginia, the Reverend Greville Pooley brought suit against Cicely Jordan, the widow of Captain Samuel Jordan. Apparently the widow had jilted him in favor of William Ferrar. Although history does not record what damages, if any, were awarded the Reverend, we do know the court sought to discourage repeat offenders: the penalty for a third offense was either "corporal punishment, or a fine, or otherwise."

Heav'n has no rage, like love to hatred turn'd, / Nor Hell a fury, like a woman scorn'd.

— William Congreve

TIP OF THE WEEK

EARTHWISE

Air conditioning is an energy guzzler, but there are ways to ease the energy drain and stay cool Clean or replace the filters every month When turning on the air conditioner, don't switch it to the coldest setting — it won't cool the room any faster, and it will waste electricity. On hot sunny days, reduce cooling costs by 20% or more by using shades and draperies to block sunlight. Awnings and trees are even more effective because they block the Sun's rays before they hit your house

MUSHROOMS IN WINE

1 pound mushrooms
1/4 cup butter
3 tablespoons chopped chives
3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
6 tablespoons dry white wine
salt and pepper to taste

Clean and slice mushrooms and sauté in butter. Stir in remaining ingredients and simmer gently over very low heat for 3 to 5 minutes

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Rainy and cool; clearing, then more rain and colder.

SOUTHEAST: Rain and thundershowers; some clearing; more rain and cool.

MIDWEST: Rain, briefly clearing, then more rain; mild.

NORTHWEST: Clear and warm; light rain; turning sunny, few showers.

OPINION

Butter Is Better

Now it can be said. Butter is better. Not that we haven't been saying this for years. But then, nobody would listen. The only claim to fame margarine had over butter was the fact that it is made from polyunsaturated fat, which tends to reduce blood cholesterol levels.

But now new research shows that trans fatty acids found in margarine raise blood cholesterol. It's hard not to say, "We told you so."

In a commentary published last Monday by the American Journal of Public Health, Harvard University's Dr. Walter Willett, chief of nutrition, said trans fatty acids are probably worse than saturated fat. While some researchers would like to see more studies done, Michael Jacobson, director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, says showing that trans fatty acids are harmful is indictment enough. The Center is currently petitioning the FDA to add trans fatty acids to food labels.

Another article by Dr. George V. Mann published in the May issue of the British journal Lancet hypothesizes that trans fatty acids can reduce the liver's ability to remove LDL (bad cholesterol) from the bloodstream. The author predicts that if trans fatty acid intake were reduced below 10 grams per day, high blood cholesterol would disappear, and cardiovascular disease would gradually decrease.

Margaret Pettingell, director of nutrition education for the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., says consumers have been brainwashed into thinking margarine is healthy. "When it comes to the butter-margarine scorecard, most consumers don't realize that the two contain the same amount of fat and calories per serving."

In addition, the gap between prices for the two has decreased considerably over the past few years. As retailers frequently feature butter as a sale item to draw in consumers, the price gap is further reduced.

So now we say it again. Butter is better. Just imagine dipping a hunk of freshly steamed lobster or topping a piping hot ear of corn with anything other than the sweet flavor of butter.

And in baking, experts agree, nothing is better than butter. Rose Levy Berenbaum, award winning author of several cookbooks and a syndicated columnist for the L.A. Times, says butter not only enhances the flavor of other ingredients, it also contributes to the tender texture of baked goods, as well as improving their keeping quality.

Here's the way we see it. All foods can be part of a healthy daily diet if consumed in moderation. People want to enjoy the food they eat, and now that science has caught up with good sense, people will not need to use bland-tasting substitutes often touted as healthful alternatives. When it comes to topping an English Muffin, vegetables, or baked potato, you are now backed by research when you choose the one with better taste. Butter!

Now Is The Time

To Control Flies

This year has been a banner year for flies.

With the limited time for spreading manure this year, I believe we had more opportunity for flies to hatch in fields over a very short period of time. As a result, more flies have found more homes to land on. Also, we have a lot more new homes being built in the country next to fields where manure is being applied. This increases the number of people being affected by flies.

Before spreading manure, make sure as many fly larvae are killed as possible. This may mean spraying the manure before spreading. If you have the time, you may want to pile the manure together and cover with a trap or black plastic for several days. Either the ammonia or lack of oxygen will effectively kill fly larvae.

Control flies in confinement houses and barns. If you use sprays, be sure to rotate your chemicals between the different classes, that is, organophosphates, carbamates, and pyrethroids. Do not use one family of pesticide for more than two weeks.

Finally, practice good sanitation. Control water leaks, clean up spilled feed, properly dispose of dead birds and broken eggs, and keep grass mowed around buildings.

To Practice Best Management

Today's consumers are demanding higher quality products. From cars to appliances to foods, people want the best.

Many companies are requiring their suppliers to certify that products are produced under a monitored quality control program.

This is beginning to happen with food products. This fall, McDonalds, one of the largest buyers of beef and eggs, will be requiring all suppliers to certify their products were produced in a humane way.

Quality control programs are being developed by many agricultural commodity groups. In order to survive, farmers will need to adopt these programs. These programs insure all the small details are done regularly and correctly. This will insure safe and high quality products.

These industry standards will need to be followed or the product will not be able to be sold. These best management practices include rodent control, testing, record keeping, clean and sanitary conditions, and equipment maintenance.

Management will become a more important aspect of farming. Now is the time to develop the management skills to keep your farm productive and competitive in the 21st Century.

To Tell The Story — Farmers Recycle

Farmers do recycle. For decades, they have been feeding by-products and food waste. Examples include soybean oil meal, distillers grains, bakery waste, cannery waste, cottonseed, candy, etc.

More recently, newspapers and phone books have been ending up under cows as bedding. Some farmers are receiving leaves and applying them to fields or using them as a source of carbon for composting.

These are examples of how farmers are working with communities to solve waste disposal problems. We need to remind people of the importance of farms in helping to maintain a healthy environment.

THE RIGHT STUFF

THE RIGHT STUFF

Background Scripture:
Exodus 3:1 - 4:17
Devotional Reading:
Exodus 3:16

Some years ago, Tom Wolfe wrote a best-selling book, The Right Stuff, about the early years of the American space program and the test pilots and astronauts who had "the right stuff" to make it work. The book, and later the 1983 motion picture, gave us a glimpse into the careful screening that enabled the space agency to choose the right men — and ultimately women, too — for these critical tasks.

But painstakingly careful selection is not always successful. Sometimes, no matter how much potential people may seem to have, they turn out not to have been the right people for the job. Intelligence, education, experience, aptitude do not guarantee that someone will have the "right stuff" for a particular job. I have seen more than a few highly qualified persons fail and also witnessed the success of people who didn't appear to have the "right stuff."

Often, we are also wrong when we judge our own competence for doing a job, particularly a job that God wants us to do. In concluding that we are not the right person for the job — helping another person, working against injustice, speaking out for a righteous cause, heading up a project — reason is usually on our side. We don't have the experience, the education, or the personality that seems to be required.

MOSES' INADEQUACY

This was the response of Moses at the burning bush experience when God said to him, "Come, I will send you to Pharaoh that you may bring forth my people . . . out of Egypt" (3:10). Up to that point, it must have been a fascinating experience; a bush that burned but was "not consumed," a heavenly voice speaking from it, the discovery that this was the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the Lord's assurance that he has "seen the affliction of my people who are in Egypt" and the promise that "I have come down to deliver them out . . . and to bring them out of that land to a good and broad land . . . flowing with milk and honey . . ." (1:7,B).

But then the Lord added, "Come, I will send you to Pharaoh . . .," and Moses had a reality attack. Suddenly he was consumed with logic: "Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh, and bring the sons of Israel out of Egypt?" (1:10). Let's be fair, Moses was right. Logically he was the wrong choice for this job: the people of Israel would not accept him because of his Egyptian background and he was a fugitive from the Pharaoh's law. Clearly, he did not have "the right stuff."

GOD'S ADEQUACY

Moses was both right and wrong. His objection was a good one, as far as it went. But, if he didn't have "the right stuff, God did. "But I will be with you," God assures him (1:12). Moses was right, he was not adequate, but God was. "And this shall be a sign for you, that I have sent you. . ." The most important factor here is not Moses' inadequacy, but that God is sending him.

Moses, like any rational person, raised three more objections. First, if he goes to the Israelites in God's name and they ask who this God is, "what shall I say to them?" Second, they will not believe that God has sent him. And third, "Oh, my Lord, I am not eloquent . . . but I am slow of speech and tongue" — three excellent reasons why Moses should insist that God has the wrong person for this task.

Yet, God meets each of these inadequacies with his even more powerful adequacy. He will provide Moses with the power and the words he needs so that his purpose will be accomplished through Moses. Thus, Moses, the inexperienced, inadequate, unprepared runaway convict will have "the right stuff."

And we will too.

CURT & BRENDA DIETRICH — NEW TRIPOLI

WORKING WITH BROWN'S SEED DIVISION TO FIND PASTURE MIXES RIGHT FOR THEIR FARM

31 HEAD DHI RHA 24,758 MILK, 801 PROTEIN, 694 FAT

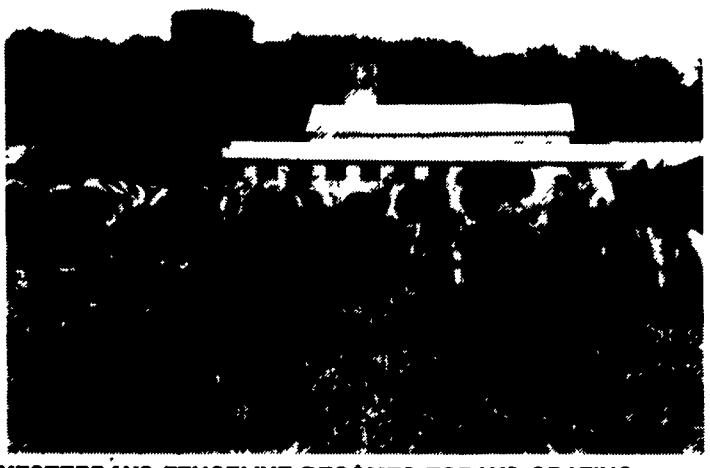
With 61 acres of hillside farm, and a full time job Curt did not want the headaches of owning equipment and renting land. Into his third year of intensive grazing, he likes the idea of only owning three pieces of equipment; a tractor, rotary mower, and manure spreader. Brown's balances his feed program using 34 AMINO PLUS PELLETS and our FLEX—FORMULA system to add the extra energy, minerals, and vitamins top cows on intensive grazing need.

60% PASTURE + TMR

DAVID & CHRIS WILLIAMS — LEBANON

61 HEAD RHA 24,013 MILK, 774 PROTEIN, 808 FAT

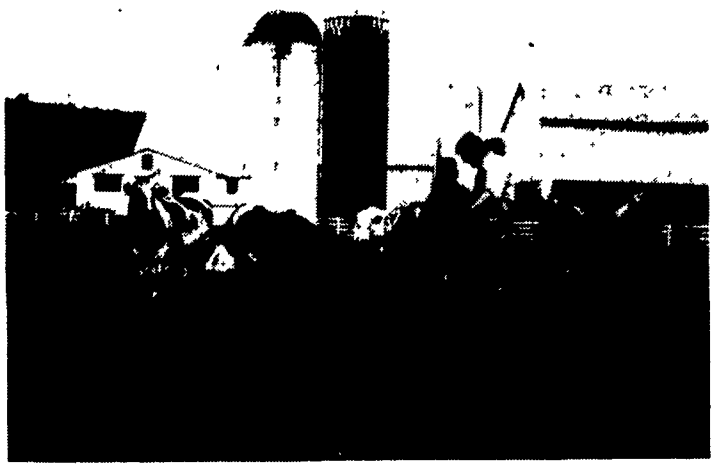
In his third year of grazing, David uses 34 acres of permanent pasture, and 23 acres of temporary pasture efficiently to feed 130 head. Last year he grazed from May 1st to Thanksgiving and averaged 70 to 75 lbs. milk per cow. He calls his cows self-propelled forages harvesters. They also spread manure saving him money since he hires custom operators to do both. BROWN'S 30 HM BALANCER and 30 PROLAC PELLETS balance the undegradable protein, energy, and fiber often deficient in high pasture programs. Breeding and body condition are important to Dave, and he credits BROWN'S supplements with helping to maintain both on pasture.



YESTERDAYS FENCELINE BECOMES TODAYS GRAZING IN THIS OLD ALFALFA FIELD WHICH WILL SOON BE PLANTED IN CORN FOR NEXT FALLS SILAGE/GRAIN NEEDS

25% PASTURE + TMR

EL-GENE HOLSTEINS — MANHEIM



WITH 42 COWS AND EVEN MORE HEIFERS, EUGENE USES 20 ACRES OF LOW LAND PASTURE EFFICIENTLY BUT DOES NOT RELY ON IT FOR ALL HIS HERDS NEEDS. HE IS SHOWN HERE WITH DAVE McCRACKEN, BROWN'S AREA DIRECTOR.

Low land pasture provides one-fourth of Eugene's forage needs, but permanent well — managed alfalfa and corn fields make better use of fertile Manheim soils. Brown's balances this program with BROWN'S 40 MILKMASTER and uses the FLEX-FORMULA concept to add cooked beans, extra fat, extra minerals, and vitamins. BROWN'S 24 AMINO PLUS C with delinted cottonseed provide top cows with high levels of undegradable protein and extra fiber. In mid May the tank reading was at 80 lbs. of milk, the top cow was over 40,000 lbs. milk, and a young herd had an ME average of over 26,000 lbs. of milk. Eugene says he is happy with his herds progress and is excited about their future potential. He is pleased with the way his herd has done on Brown's feeding programs, and likes the assistance Brown's Area Director Dave McCracken and nutritionist Dr. Walter Kennett provide him in reaching his herd goals.

to more than 125 commercial growers during the Southeast Pennsylvania Twilight Fruit Growers Meeting at Wolf's Orchard on Tuesday evening.

Growers should be aware of the two types of borer that destroy peach trees — the peach tree borer and the lesser peach tree borer.

According to Dr. Larry Hull, professor of entomology at Penn State, restrictions that prevent growers from spraying for the borer because of fruit set don't apply in a year with no crop to be harvested, so timely applications can be made.

The peach tree borer has one generation per year, which emerges the second week of June. Shown here, the borer can attack the trunk of the tree anywhere from 12 inches above the ground to about 12 inches below. The borer can kill the trees, said Hull.

The peach tree borer has one generation per year, which emerges the second week of June. The borer can attack the trunk of the tree anywhere from 12 inches above the ground to about 12 inches below. The borer can kill the trees, said Hull, especially young stock. And with a year "like this, with no peach crop, you can get in there and spray the trees at the proper time," he said.

The lesser peach tree borer, because of its feeding, has the potential to spread cytospora canker and other diseases. Two borer generations emerge per year, one about the second or third week of June and another mid- to late August.

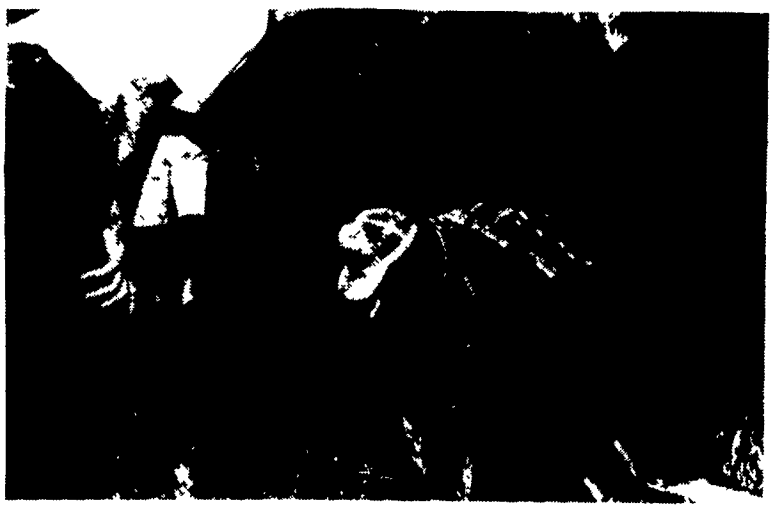
Growers can utilize the window of opportunity from Aug. 1-15 to spray for the pest.

Hull said, "The key to controlling borers is a thorough, dilute application. Air blast sprayers just don't cut it. You cannot drive enough material into the trunk of the tree (using air blast sprayers.)"

Growers should use a high-pressure handgun, wetting the trunk of the tree up to the first limbs. To be even more effective, Hull said one farmer used a hoe to dig a holding trench for the chemical at the base of the tree. Growers should go out the first week of August and make the applications.

"I think this is the best time to clean up your orchards, because you can get in there and do that application and really save these peach trees and get the orchard back into good health for the coming year," said Hull.

Another potential problem for growers to face is the nematode.



Growers should be aware of the two types of borer that destroy peach trees — the peach tree borer and the lesser peach tree borer. According to Dr. Larry Hull, professor of entomology at Penn State, restrictions that prevent growers from spraying for the borer because of fruit set don't apply in a year with no crop to be harvested, so timely applications can be made. Here, Hull digs for the borer.

Ken Hickey, Penn State Fruit Research Lab, Biglerville, spoke about the potential for problems from diseases such as apple scab and fire blight at a meeting Tuesday evening at Wolf's Orchard.

The problem, said Dr. John Halbrendt, assistant professor of plant pathology at Penn State, can be slow to develop. Also, growers often believe that if a problem is out of sight, it's out of mind, according to the pathologist. This could lead to trouble.

He told the growers that "you need to think about the possibility that you might have nematode problems sooner or later in your orchards or in your small fruit production.

"By the time that you see evidence of a nematode problem, then you have a serious problem on your hands, and it's very difficult to turn that situation around."

For those planting a new orchard or replanting an existing one, they should first purchase a soil assay kit for $8 from any extension office and have the ground tested for a potential problem.

"It's much easier to use preventative measures, to send soil samples to the lab ahead of time, before replanting an orchard or before putting in a small fruit planting," said Halbrendt. "Determine whether there's any potential at the very outset to develop problems."

The two big pests are the dagger nematode (which can carry the tomato ringspot virus that causes peach stempit disease) and the root lesion nematode, which can affect young trees and dwarf stock readily, according to Halbrendt.

The dagger nematode's feeding activities spread the ringspot virus. The virus exists in broadleaf weeds, such as dandelions.

Halbrendt stressed the importance of controlling both the broadleaf weeds and the nematode itself all at once.

The root lesion nematode can be devastating to growers who have young stock or with the small root systems inherent in dwarf stock. More and more orchardists are using dwarf stock and should be aware of potential problems because of the nematodes.

A combination of cultural practices and the use of pesticides in the correct manner can offer control of the pest.

One of the ways that Penn State research has found to reduce the incidence of nematode infestation is using a cover crop. Penn State looked into the effectiveness of two crops, sudangrass and rapeseed, because of the beneficial effects of organic material in the soil toward preventing nematodes.

As the cover crop decomposes, chemicals toxic to nematodes are released.

"The cover crop I'm most excited about right now is the use of rapeseed as an interim rotation," he said. "The use of rapeseed as a green manure has a tremendous benefit for reducing nematode population. A two-year rotation with rapeseed can be as effective as a soil fumigant."

Different rapeseed varieties vary in their effectiveness, according to the researcher.

Ken Hickey, Penn State Fruit Research Lab, Biglerville, spoke about the potential for problems from diseases such as apple scab and fire blight because of rain during the growing season, particularly from mid-June until harvest.

"The incidence and severity of these diseases is closely correlated with the amount of rainfall that happens during the summer," said Hickey. "We need to concentrate on the control of these diseases from this point forward."

Fire blight and other bacteria is controlled by limiting the amount of leafhopper present. The time to spray to control the fire blight bacteria is when the blossoms are open.

Another potential problem for growers to face is the nematode. The problem, said Dr. John Halbrendt, assistant professor of plant pathology at Penn State, can be slow to develop.

Dairymen Inc., Mid-America To Merge

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Leaders of Dairymen Inc. (DI), of Louisville, Kentucky, and Mid-America Dairymen Inc. (Mid-Am), of Springfield, Missouri, announced this week the signing of the non-binding letter of understanding initiating actions that could result in the merger of the two dairy cooperatives.

The proposed merger would bring together 3,300 dairy farmer members of Dairymen Inc., and 13,000 members of Mid-America Dairymen Inc., which together marketed more than 12.5 billion pounds of milk in 1993.

"This merger makes a lot of sense for both our organizations," said DI Board President Buckey M. Jones. "Mid-Am is a strong competitor in the Midwest markets, and DI is a major marketer in the Southeast and Mid-Atlantic regions of the United States. Combining our organizations will increase our operational and marketing efficiency, and that will benefit members of both organizations."

Mid-Am Board President Carl Baumann said merger of the two organizations would result in few changes for member dairy farmers.

"Both organizations are financially sound and there are many similarities in the way both organizations operate," he said, noting that the mission of both cooperatives is to provide each member market security by providing a market for all the milk the member desires to produce and marketing that milk in the form and market channels providing maximum returns consistent with long-term stability.

Preliminary merger discussions by a committee of board members from both organizations resulted in a non-binding letter of understanding. The target date for the merger (if approved by boards and members of both organizations) is August 31, 1994.

Membership governance structure will be studied by a committee of five members from each cooperative. The proposed plan of consolidation will be submitted to both boards of directors, and if approved, will be taken to each respective membership for approval.

In 1993, Dairymen Inc., and its subsidiaries, had revenues of $784 million from total assets valued at $174 million. Member equity was $52.2 million and the number of employees is approximately 2,900. Mid-America Dairymen Inc., had revenues of $1.8 billion in 1993, and total assets valued at $385.5 million. Member equity stood at $133.8 million and the cooperative has nearly 3,000 employees.

DHI-Provo Develops Custom Reports

J. LEE MAJESKIE
Extension Dairy Specialist
Dept. Animal Sciences
University of Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The DHI system provides dairy producers with valuable information.

Not only are production data provided on individual cows, but important herd data helps producers effciently manage their dairy herd. These data are also useful tools for the extension dairy specialist, veterinarian, feed consultant and other people who may be involved in helping dairy producers to efficiently use the dairy records.

Most DHI processing centers provide detailed management data on the herd.

Recently, DHI-Provo developed the "Personal Herd Profile" report that allows dairy producers to develop and customize a special report from the data listed on the monthly DHI herd summary.

On the Personal Herd Profile, key management statistics can be grouped into a short, concise report, making it easy to compare statistics that each dairy producers feels are vital for efficient management of his or her herd.

A detailed report, listing numerous items from the monthly herd summary, or a simple report, with only a few selected items, can be designed.

In the example given (see accompanying table), four major areas selected were production traits (milk, fat, protein), udder health (somatic cell count data), reproductive performance, and genetic evaluation (cows, sires and service sires).

The dairy producer can select the data for each item by lactation group (first lactation, second lactation, and third lactation or more), or a herd average for each item.

Many times it is important to identify the lactation group where a problem exists.

A dairy farmer can compare information from his/her herd summary to up-to-date area averages by county, state and region, as well as production groups within the region. This allows producers to quickly compare herd information with area averages on one easy-to-read page designed by them.

There are also statistical evaluations given to help dairy producers to interpret the information on the report.

As shown in the example, the gray area in the center of the Personal Herd Profile includes the present data for the herd. To the right of the herd data are listed the percentiles for each item. The percentile provides a ranking of all herds within a set grouping (i.e. herd breed) from high to low.

Thus, the highest value would receive a percentile ranking of 100, while the lowest value would receive a percentile ranking of 1.

If a herd is ranked in the 64th percentile, then 64 percent of the herds have a value less or equal to the herd's value and 36 percent have a value greater than the herd's value.

The desirability of an item ranking over another is based on the individual herd summary trait (item) selected.

For example, a high percentile ranking would be desirable for the comparison of pounds of milk or percent protein, while a low percentile would be desirable for a trait such as cows with high somatic cell score, or services per conception.

To the left of the herd data, a dairy producer can list goals that he or she would like to see attained for the herd. The goals are reported next to the herd summary item on the report. DHI-Provo will then generate a report with the specified goal for each of the items. These goals can be changed at any time once the situation has been evaluated.

For the herd reported in Table 1, a herd goal of 22,000 pounds of milk has been lsited. Since the herd already averages 21,089 pounds of milk, this goal should be easily attainable.

Each of the items under the major categories can be evaluated to see where strengths occur and identify weaknesses that must be improved to reach the 22,000 pound goal. In the columns on the right side of the report, listed as "East Holstein," there are four production groups reported.

Within each region of the country, the herds processed by the DHI-Provo are classified into four production groups within each breed, using the rolling herd average for milk production. It is easy to distinguish what factors are correlated with high production when comparing the high and low producing herd groups.

In quickly analyzing the herd in the four major areas, the second lactation group average of 55.9 pounds of milk ranks them in the 48th percentile. This would indicate that there were 52 percent of the Holstein herds in Maryland that have second lactation cows averaging more milk than 55.9 pounds.

The first lactation group of cows are in the 85 percentile and the third lactation group is in the 93 percentile. There appears to be some problem that is preventing the second lactation cows from reaching higher production levesl.

In evaluating the peak production for each of the lactation groups, it appears that this level will have to be raised slighlty for each group in order to reach the 22,000 pounds herd average goal.

DHI-Provo Develops

The feeding program for the milking herd may have to be revised.

The udder health portion of the report indicates that there is no serious problem with the somatic cell count level in the herd. The percent of cows in the low somatic cell count group is higher than the state or regional average.

In evaluating the reproductive performance, it appears the cows are being bred early, however, the percent first service pregnancy reate is low and the service per conception is higher than the state and regional average.

Also, the last calving interval was 12.9 months for all cows in the herd and the next calving interval for all pregnant cows in the herd is projected to be 13.6 months. Therefore, it appears that a breeding problem has occured in the herd and some changes may be necessary to correct the situation.

The genetic information for the herd shows that the Predicted Transmitting Ability (PTA) for pounds of milk is low in the first lactation cows when compared to the state and regional average. The PTA for milk for the sires of the cows appears to be satistfactory. The service sires that are being selected appear to be below the state and regional average.

Since there is reasonably priced semen from high quality bulls for production and phsical type traits, this average could easily be raised.

The Personal Herd Profile can be a valuable management tool for all dairy farmers. This personalized report, customized and designed by the dairy producer, can be used to set realistic goals; to evaluate the herd; and to identify the problems that need to be solved by the management team.

Bedford Valley Farmers Realize Dream

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD VALLEY (Bedford Co.) — When the other kids were playing ball, Brian Zembower played farm.

"Maybe it's because my dad quit farming the year I was born," he said. "But I always wanted to farm. I couldn't wait to grow up and milk cows."

When only a junior in high school, Brian started buying calves and raising them to sell. "But I soon found that most farmers don't want to sell their heifer calves," he said.

"Then, I found a farmer who had 20 head of Holstein and he wanted to sell them all. I talked to dad, and he went along with me. We couldn't find a local bank to back farming, so we went to Lancaster and got the money. Dad had a lot of faith in me to sign those papers.

"We started shipping milk when I was still a junior. However, I soon found I couldn't do it alone. Keeping up with school and milking cows just didn't go together. I asked my older brother, Randy, to help out and he agreed. We became partners, and employed our younger brother, Kevin. Now Kevin is also an equal partner."

Shortly after his high school graduation, Brian and his brothers bought another herd and built a freestall.

"I learned how to 'make do.' We bought a bulk tank second hand for $50. If a neighbor had a scraper he was going to throw away, I grabbed it and fixed it for our own use."

Today, the Zembower brothers milk 80 head of Holstein and keep an additional 80. They farm more than 300 acres in fertile Bedford Valley.

Brian is the herdsman and breeds the cows himself, having obtained his license several years ago.

Randy does all of the mechanic work, keeping the machinery running, and Kevin takes care of the feeding.

"We do everything ourselves," Brian said. "We build our own milking parlor, fix our own machinery, breed our own cows, and I do as much of the veterinary work as I possibly can."

They buy most of their grain while raising their own forage.

Brian has developed a somewhat unique breeding system by keeping a Hereford bull with his heifers, who are to be bred for the first time.

"Because they are kept in a pasture several miles from the farm, it is virtually impossible to know when they are in heat," he said. "I tried keeping a Holstein bull with them, but they got mean and it didn't work. Then, I tried a Hereford and found them to be much more gentle. Because they are smaller, the cow has her first-time birth easier and the calves are very easy to sell. We sell all of our first calves."

Brian, Randy, and his wife Lee handle the milking chores, although Brian's daughter, Amy, 12, is a big help.

"Amy wanted to go to the barn at a young age," Brian said. "She's tall for her age, and once I started using her assistance, I found it was hard to do without. Of course, now she doesn't enjoy it as much."

Holly, who is only 3, loves the cows and spends at least an hour a day helping with milking chores by opening and shutting the gate. "It's amazing how she will stick with it," Brian said.

"I wants to be a farmer," the toddler said proudly.

Daughter, Heidi, 8, hopes to join her older sister with chores this summer.

As with many farm families these days, Brian's wife Faith works in nearby Bedford. Starting as a clerk in the tax assessor's office, she was recently elected as the county registrar and recorder.

"When she first told me she was going to run, I laughed," Brian said. "Then, when I realized she was serious, I did all I could to help her."

Running against four other candidates and virtually unknown as a Democrat in a heavily Republican area, Faith and Brian won the election almost single-handed.

"It wasn't easy," Brian said. "We had to put up signs, knock on doors, attend dinners, and it was all happening in the spring. Fortunately, that spring, we had quite a few rainy days."

Winning the primary easily, Faith continued an uphill battle for the fall election. "That was even worse," Brian said, smiling, "I had corn to be picked and signs to put up and then take down at the same time. I remember telling people I would take the signs down right after the election and I kept my promise, but it wasn't easy."

The family even found a few hours to build a float for the Halloween parade.

One of the biggest problems he sees for the future of the farm is the necessary traveling with machinery on the road. "We've had several close calls and one accident," he said. "It's a problem I just don't know how to avoid, and living along Route 220 — which keeps getting busier — doesn't help."

He also sees BST as a problem for farmers down the road. "I personally hope it phases out," he said. "I don't think it is harmful, but I see other problems. If it increases production, it will lower the milk prices. But, harmful, no. Dairy cows get a lot of things that would have more potential to be harmful than BST."

Still not sorry he chose farming for his lifetime career, Brian does admit that the "thrill of milking has worn off and he takes every other Sunday off to do something with his family."

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 5

EXCELLENT WEEK FOR FIELDWORK: There were six days suitable for fieldwork. Warmer and drier than normal weather conditions across the state resulted in a great week for fieldwork but for a significant deterioration in soil moisture conditions. Soil moisture was rated short by 51 percent of our respondents, adequate by 48 percent, and surplus by 1 percent. Activities included planting corn and soybeans, transplanting tobacco, making hay, spraying pesticides, hauling manure, and caring for livestock.

CROPS: Last week's weather was ideal for hay making. Farmers made considerable progress on the first alfalfa cutting and 93 percent reported that the quality of hay made was good. A few had started a second alfalfa cutting. Weevil damage was substantial in some fields. Many farmers indicated that rain is needed for a good second cutting. Wheat, barley, and oats generally looked good. The corn condition continued to improve with the warm weather. The corn height averaged 4 inches across the commonwealth.

LIVESTOCK: Pasture condition was reported good. Some farmers reported slow regrowth and short stands because of the dry conditions.

VEGETABLES: Strawberries were ripening well and many growers were preparing for the first picking of the season.

that they are not absolutely certain that the insect is the entire cause of the problem.

Damage to leaves on plants had been thought to be caused by late spring cold, and Barbara Goulart, a Penn State associate professor of horticulture and extension specialist in small fruits, said the damage could possibly be a combination of cold damage and thrips capitalizing on weakened plants.

However, in a telephone interview Thursday, she said that she is "90-percent" sure it is the Eastern Flowers Thrips. Cause for concern about the accuracy of that determination is because the species of thrips is indigenous (naturally occuring) in the state and similar damage had not been previously recorded.

Also supporting the belief that Thrips are to blame is the possibility that populations of Thrips may have been heavy because of very good winter survival.

It is possible that the insulative effects of the heavy snows, despite the record cold and length of cold, has lead to a higher incidence than normal of overwintering survival, and thus to higher populations of insects emerging in spring.

Except for production losses and the detraction from the appearance of the fruit, strawberries are safe to eat and should not be a cause of concern for the cosuming public.

However, for the producer, the strawberry crop may be severely damaged. One producer estimated a 75 percent loss compared to last year's production from the same field.

Depending On Extension

The help to strawberry growers is coming almost solely from Penn State University's College of Agriculture, though resources in the state are limited.

Goulart said that Hellerick is somewhat of a "hero" in discovering the thrip and getting the system going to determine the extent of the problem.

Using the Penn State computer system, Hellerick has requested other extension field agents to check fields in their respective counties and report that information back to him.

As of Wednesday, Hellerick said he has received confirmations of damage from Bucks, Chester, York, and Franklin counties, in addition to Lancaster.

The extension agent said that producers across the northern tier of the state and in New York may want to check fields now, in order to determine whether or not they can take action to prevent significant losses

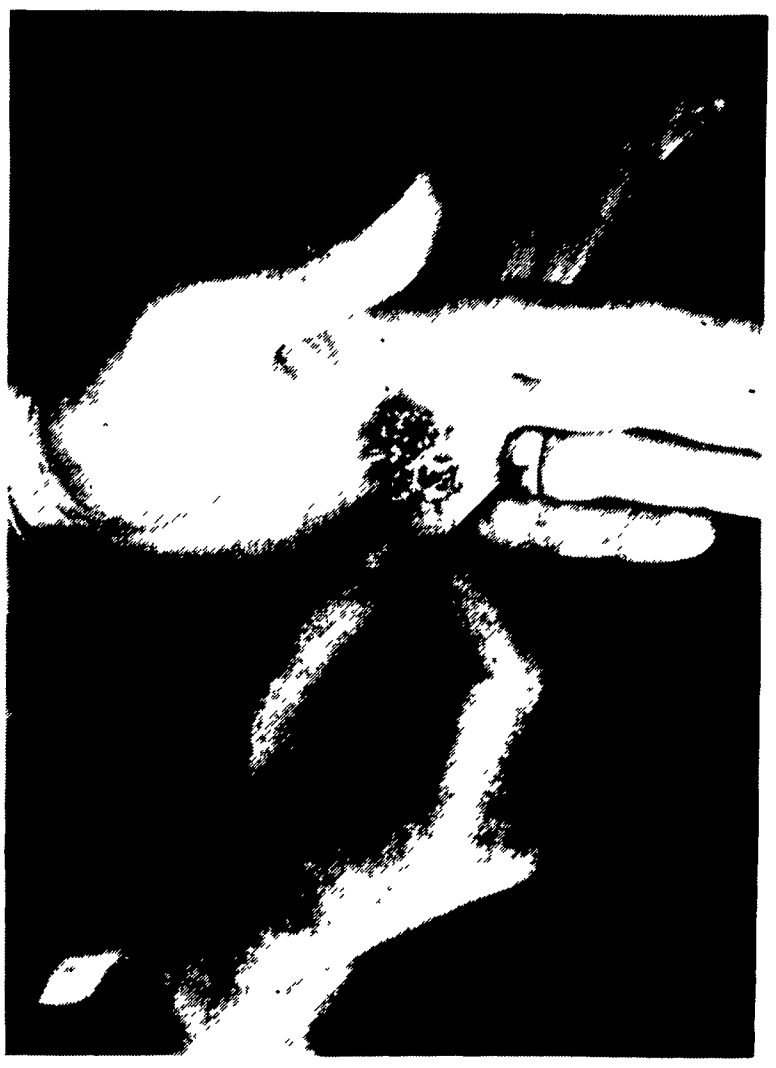
In the meantime, Penn State University and its extension researchers and agents are working to determine the extent of the problem. Producers can help by reporting infestations to their local agent. Since the problem does not pose any type of health risk to the public, the identity of the producer reporting a heavy infestation is not necessary for general public knowledge.

If work by Penn State reveals that there is a wide-spread significant problem that may require a request for federal assistance, they will inform officials at the state Department of Agriculture.

Once Penn State makes the determination of the extent of the problem and documents it, then PDA will review the university's findings and process a request for aid, if one is made, based on the nature of the problem.

In the meantime, the PDA is taking no active role in determining whether or not there is a problem, according to Carl Valley, PDA entomologist. Valley did help Hellerick however, by identifying the thrip samples Hellerick gave to him as the Eastern Flower Thrips, of which little technical information is available.

Lancaster County Extension Agent Bruce Hellerick show strawberries suffering from an infestation of Eastern Flowers Thrips which is thought to be causing a severe degradation on the quality of the fruit.



A way to test for Eastern Flowers Thrips in an area is to check clover flowers. Tap the clover flower against the palm of the hand and look very closely for small, lice-like insects. In heavily infested flower heads a number of thrips should be visible crawling on the palm. The insects are not dangerous to people and will not bite. Nor will they cause any problem if accidently ingested.

Valley said he doesn't have expertise on the thrips, and Penn State is currently without a resident entomologist who does. Goulart said she has been depending entirely on support from Cornell University for entomological expertise.

It is known however, that Thrips concentrate their feeding on the buds, flowers and vascular portions (the tubes carrying plant juice) which are hidden.

Currently the tiny, yellow-whitish insect are being found in the flowers and between the cap of the strawberry and the fruit.

The appearance of affected fruit would be dullness, appearance of seediness (caused by a lack of fruit development to expand and distance seeds), white tips on the fruit and a lack of apparent maturity.

Plants are also showing some leaf damage, which early on caused field agents to suspect cold damage, but which actually could have been caused by thrips feeding on developing plant buds in early spring, or through egg laying activity.

According to information disseminated by Hellerick, "Thrips are small, slender, active insects less than ¼ -inch in length with two pair of wings which have a fringe of feather-like hairs around the slender margin.

"The Eastern Flowers Thrips (EFT) is believed to be the most abundant and widely distributed thrips in the United States."

According to the information, "(Female thrips) insert their eggs in leaf slits made by the saw-like ovipositor. Egg hatch in two to seven days. The entire life cycle is completed in two to four weeks, depending on temperature. Many generations occur each year, but the largest populations are present from late spring to midsummer."

Finding Thrips

To look for thrips, examine the fruit at the junction of the cap and the fruit. If there is a browning around the junction, and if the fruit appears somewhat dried near the area, it is probably infected.

Researchers have been finding five or more thrips per berry.

The insects are difficult to see. They are the size of the hairs on the strawberry fruit, but tallowy in color. They will move around when disturbed from their secretive feeding areas in flowers or in the

Thrip-affected strawberries on the left are dull, seeds close together, small sized, and show uneven maturity. The ones on the right are shiny, plump and even in color. Notice also, the white area between cap and fruit on the strawberry in the upper right, as compared to the dark area on the strawberry on the left with the same area exposed.

Thrips May Be Cause Of Strawberry Problem

cap-fruit zone.

Further, the thrips also thrive on clover and checking clover flowers adjacent to a strawberry patch can help determine if thrips may be a problem.

Anti-pesticide Consumers

Some growers are being put in a difficult situation: for some who market strawberries roadside, or who run "pick-your-own" operations, consumers have been frequently asking whether plants or fruit has been protected with pesticide.

According to Goulart, there's a Catch-22 for strawberry growers: if a producer uses pesticides he may lose a lot of consumers; if he doesn't use pesticide he may not have a crop at all.

Further Support

Goulart said that she is even more confident in the estimate of being "90-percent" sure that thrips are the problem because she has initially found that producers who used pesticides on strawberry plants while the plants were in flower have not had the thrips problem. She said it appears that those who did not use any pesticides are experiencing losses.

And while there are not yet any official recommendations for fighting the problem, Hellerick said cross referencing has allowed him to suggest three possible pesticides approved for use on strawberries.

In his computer memo, Hellerick states, "Since this pest is usually not a major problem, it is not listed in the Small Fruit Production and Pest Management Guide. I checked the Penn State Woody Ornamental Pest Control Suggestion Guide for insecticide recommendations for exposed thrips. I then cross referenced this information with insecticides registered for strawberries ... Insecticides remaining with days to harvest include: Diazinon (apply just before bloom), Guthion (five days wait until harvest), and Sevin XLR (one day wait until harvest)."

However, using a pesticide now may be considered a waste of time. These insects are not often exposed and the chemical may not get to the where the pests are located.

Goulart said she intends to research the insect further in an attempt to determine some potentially effective treatments and to build some recommendations for control.

In addition, strawberries are not the only plants being affect by thrips in Lancaster. According to Hellerick, it has been affecting the development and health of roses.

The Eastern Flowers Thrips has been infesting strawberries — flowers and fruit — and in the fruit are found feeding in the area between the cap and the fruit. This is the area of concentration of vessels which carry plant fluid and nutrition to the developing fruit. It is thought that thrips are getting the nutrition, not the fruit.

Adams Holstein Approve Scholarship

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Establishment of a scholarship program and plans for summer activities were advanced when the Board of Directors, Adams County Holstein Association, met June 6, at the Penn State Extension office, in Gettysburg. Marvin Brown presided.

Kevin Holtziner, secretary, read minutes of recent board meetings; Robin Thompson presented a current financial report.

The board considered options for distribution of a quantity of cheese which remains unsold from the recent fund raiser. It was decided to award one block to each paid member who attends the Holstein Association's Twilight meeting on Thursday, July 14.

Reporting for a newly appointed scholarship committee, Kevin Holtzinger presented the criteria for awarding a $250 scholarship. The report was accepted and the scholarship established by unanimous vote.

Applicants must be a member of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association, a resident of Adams County, who is attending or planning to attend a 4-year school, two-year school, technical school, or short course which has been approved by the scholarship committee. Applicants are eligible as high school seniors through age 21.

Applications for the scholarship are available at the Adams County Extension Office, 1135 Chambersburg Road, Gettysburg, PA 17325, and must be completed and returned to this address on or before September 15, 1994.

The board voted to provide $300 toward support of the Farm-City Open House event which is being planned for the John Hess Farm on Saturday, Sept. 17, 1994.

Plans were advanced for a Dairy Twi-Light meeting to be held on Thursday, July 14, 7 p.m. at the Lagging Stream Farm of Thomas Clowney and sons, at Barlow. The program will feature cow judging and a discussion of intensive grazing.

Anticipating a large dairy show at the South Mountain Fair on Friday, Sept. 2, 1994, the board agreed to sponsor the Holstein Show which will facilitate the hiring of a second judge.

USDA Adopts TB Controls For Deer, Elk

LANHAM, Md. — On May 15, the US Department of Agriculture instituted Uniform Methods and Rules for the eradication of tuberculosis in Cervidae (deer & elk), regulations which are equivalent to those in place for cattle and bison.

Though Tb has been found in new farmed deer herds over the past 10 years, the deer farming industry recognized early that livestock diseases must be controlled and began working with USDA to identify effective testing methods and to develop regulations which would ensure accurate diagnosis of the disease on farms.

Deer farmers, represented by the North American Deer farmers Association, have worked diligently over the past 5 years to establish reasonable and necessary regulation of their livestock.

In the absence of assistance or regulatory input from wildlife agencies, the deer farming industry has worked with the USDA and state departments of agriculture, which appropriately regulate livestock and the safety of food products for human consumption.

NADeFA President Joe Delfino, owner of Old Moses Farm in Vermont, farms deer and raises horses.

Mr. Delfino said, "It has been the USDA which works to control disease, not the wildlife agencies. Unfortunately, some wildlife agencies have chosen not to work with the deer farming industry and USDA and are ignoring existing facts and regulations and all too frequently make statements based on rumors and lack of specific knowledge."

Gov. Casey Requests Supplemental USDA Aid For Fruit Growers

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Gov. Robert Casey has requested aid from U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy to help state fruit growers overcome weather-related production damages which threaten to put some producers out of business.

At the same time, state Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff has requested that U.S. legislators representing Pennsylvania support the passage of U.S. Senate Bill 1614, the Better Nutrition and Health for Children Act, which would again permit the use of food vouchers at farm markets.

In a letter dated June 9, Casey wrote to Espy, "As governor ... I need to inform you about the great jeopardy that Pennsylvania's fruit farmers are in and to explain their plight.

"Winter damage from excessive snowfall and extreme cold temperatures has destroyed most of this year's peach and nectarine crop, and has also caused millions of dollars in damage to farm buildings and machinery.

"Extension agents have reported a total crop loss in Adams, Franklin, and York counties. That is catastrophic to our growers and a critical blow to our commonwealth's economy.

"Ranked number four in the nation in peach production, Pennsylvania's peach trees produced a $20 million crop in 1993."

Further Casey wrote that additional losses occured May 26 with high winds and hail that "... devastated apple, pear, plum and cherry crops in Adams and Cumberland counties."

He said that while assessments are complete from that storm, extension personnel and staff with the USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have reported "thousands of acres of orchards were damaged ... and individual growers have lost hundreds of thousand of dollars worth of fruit. In addition to Pennsylvania's orchard damage, growers with strawberry crops that were near harvest have lost 50 to 75 percent of their berries.

"Tragically, many growers will not survive without substantial help from the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Neither state nor local government in Pennsylvania has any program available to assist farmers with natural disaster relief."

He requested additional federal aid in addition to the low-interest Farm Home Administration loans for which many counties already qualify.

Futher, Casey states that U.S. Sen. Harris Wofford and Secretary Wolff have discussed the matter and that Wofford is expected contact Espy about the matter and to "explore federal assistance that may be available to our farmers.

"I urge you to explore all avenues of relief so that Pennsylvania's fruit farmers can start rebuilding their crops and their lives after such a severe disaster."

Concerning the pending legislation which would again authorize the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Farmer's Market Nutrition Program — a program that enables food purchases, using coupons, at farm markets by eligible pregnant and breastfeeding women — Secretary Wolff also requested the help of U.S. Sen. Wofford in getting the bill passed.

"WIC/FMNP food dollars this year will purchase fresh fruits and vegetables from 514 Pennsylvania farmers in 239 markets, and in turn, those fruits and vegetables will help 68,500 WIC participants to eat healthier, nutritous food," Wolff said in the letter.

According to the PDA, the WIC/FMNP last year reimbused $692,830 to participating farmer-marketers for fresh food purchases by eligible WIC participants.

The concept of the program is to provide fresh, healthy food to those with limited resources, and to promote the consumption of locally produced food.

Pennsylvania was one of the first 11 states to receive funding under the program started last year. Five hundred farmers in Pennsylvania have been authorized to participate, and can be expected to again, with the successful passage of the legislation.

Lancaster Tobacco Industry

Martin said.

In addition to taxes, Martin said OSHA also has issued conditions under which you can smoke. "I can't smoke in my home if I have a maid or when I hire a repair person to fix my refrigerator," Martin said. "I can't smoke in a hotel or in my office even if I am in the tobacco business. When I go make a purchase, I can't smoke in the tobacco shop, and I can't smoke in my company car even if I am alone.

"They haven't said if I can smoke on my riding lawn mower," Martin said facetiously. "I'll need to call them about that.

Lancaster County farmers have reported that they intend to plant additional 609 cigarette tobacco this year because of the poor price on 41 chewing tobacco last year. But according to Martin, the domestic content law may be changed and catch farmers unprepared. Last year 75 percent of the tobacco used in manufacturing needed to come from the U.S. Since Lancaster County could supply part of the domestic needs, their type 609 was in more demand than type 41. But with a change in the law, more off-shore tobacco may be imported and decrease the demand for local 609 this year.

In Pennsylvania, tobacco generates $25 million in farm income and another $25 million to related service businesses. Taxes on tobacco products in the state generate $230 million.

"Farms support the backbone of our economy," Martin said. "The sooner people realize this, the better we will be. After they (government regulations and taxes) are finished with the tobacco industry, which farm industry will be next?"

Farm Forum

Editor:

Throughout the past months, a controversial issue has arisen regarding milk and dairy products. Bovine somatotropin, or BST, has been made available to dairy farmers across the United States. This has caused many consumers to become concerned regarding the healthfulness of milk and dairy products. Serving as Maryland Dairy Princess I have encountered many concerned consumers and questions they have regarding the use of BST. Recently, at the college I attend, Western Maryland College, SEAC — our environmental group — has taken action to inform the student population of some information it has obtained regarding BST. Most notably is the Consumer Warning flyer which states what you should know before you buy milk and dairy products. After reading the flyer, I became even more concerned; not because of the use of BST but because of the inaccuracy of the information presented.

One of the most important facts that consumers should be aware of is BST is a naturally produced hormone in cows. In a report released by Dr. David Barano, Professor, Department of Food Science, Cornell University, it states that milk from cows given supplemental BST contains no more BST than milk from cows not given the supplement. There are no differences in nutriet content (fat, protein, calcium, vitamins) or sensory characteristics (flavor, color) of milk from treated cows. The level of BST in milk remains the same. The extra BST is used by the cow.

Another issue of concern is the claim that BST can make you sick due to the increased amounts of bacteria in milk. Consumers need to realize that in American we have the highest standards for food products. Milk undergoes one of the highest and strictest processing procedures. The tests and processes that milk undergoes will not change. Farmers will still have milk inspections, milk will still be tested, and will still undergo pasteurization — all processes that eliminate any harmful bacteria that may be present in milk.

Finally, the use of BST will not cause any environmental harm. Dr. Barbano states that the use of BST will reduce the amount of animal waste per unit of milk produced and will reduce the amount of feed required to produce a unit of milk. This is because the cow will more efficiently produce milk, thus leading to an environmental benefit.

Again, consumers should realize that the milk and dairy products they will be buying in the grocery will be safe and just as nutritious for them to drink. Regulatory and scientific bodies in at least twenty countries including the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada, France, and Germany have authorized milk and meat from cows supplemented with BST as safe for people of all ages.

The dairy cow has been a source of nutrition for over 11,000 years. Her wholesome and nutritious product have nourished and sustained life for millions of humans. The cow is the greatest producer of calcium and phosphorus, elements so essential for our existence. She is the producer of nature's most perfect food.

Rural Development Council To Meet

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — The Pennsylvania Rural Development Council will hold a town meeting June 15 at the Penn State campus in Wilkes-Barre to focus attention on economic development issues for northeastern Pennsylvania.

The session comes in the aftermath of a report published recently by the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania, which identified a number of issues critical to future growth in the region.

"The report was part of that group's 'NEPA 2000 Project,' which addresses economic development and qualify of life," Rural Development Council Co-chair Peter Loedding said. "It includes the results of two questionnaire surveys of local government officials."

Helen D. Wise, who co-chairs the council with Loedding, said council officials feel discussion of these issues is important.

"Our mission is to bring federal, state and local governments together with private enterprise and nonprofit groups to promote economic development and a better quality of life in rural Pennsylvania," Wise said.

"A full and open discussion of those issues deemed by local people to be important will go a long way toward accomplishing that mission in northeastern Pennsylvania."

Wise is deputy chief of staff for programs and secretary to the cabinet for Gov. Robert P. Casey.

Topics to be discussed at the town meeting, and the discussion leaders are:

• Regionalization — George Klaus, director of the Bureau of Local Government Service, Pennsylvania Department of Community Affairs.

• Leadership training — Klaus.

• Council of Governments (COG) system — Bob Hormell, assistant director of SEDA-COG.

• Strategic planning — Anna Breinich, president of the Pennsylvania Planning Association.

• Incentives for governments to work together — Paul Raetsch, chief planning technical assistant for the U.S. Economic Development Administration.

• Tax reform proposals as they affect rural Pennsylvanians — Dean DeLong, Carbon County Commissioner; Douglas Hill, executive director of the Pennsylvania County Commissioners Association; and Dawson Detwiler, executive director of the Pennsylvania Association of Rural & Small Schools.

• Joint delivery of services — Howard Grossman, executive director, Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

• The town meeting will be held at the Fortinsky Auditorium in the Center for Technology on the campus, beginning at 7 p.m.

Interested persons are asked to reserve space by calling the Pennsylvania Rural Development Council in Williamsport at (717) 327-3435.

Pa. Holstein Cancels Western Judging School BVD To Blame

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Western Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Judging School that had been scheduled to be held June 27-28 in Butler County has been canceled because of problems associated with Bovine Virus Diarrhea (BVD), a disease that has been showing up in cattle herds across the United States and Canada.

According to a news release, "With current BVD problems faced by a number of herds in northwest Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association feels that to minimize potential exposure to herds, it is in the best interest of all involved to cancel our junior judging school in Butler for this year."

Youth interested in advancing their knowledge of cattle judging may still attend the Eastern Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Judging School that is still scheduled for June 29-30 in Franklin County.

At the eastern school, Creedin Cornman, a well-known Holstein breeder and judge from Carlisle, is to serve as school teacher.

Details of the school have also been finalized and herds to be visited include Pleasant Valley Jersey Farm, owned by Lester and Doug Martin and family of Chambersburg; Antrim Spring Holsteins, owned by Harold, Roger and Rodney Crider, Chambersburg; Crown Stone Guernsey Farm, owned by the William Schnebly Family, in Clear Spring, Md.; and Windy-Knoll-View Holsteins, owned by James and Nina Burdette and family, in Mercersburg.

Plans include placing and discussing three classes of animals at each farm. Those who attend will have an opportunity to place each class and participate in discussions on their placings.

The cost of the school is $25 for overnight participants, $15 for commuters, and families can take off $5 for each additional family member attending. Registrations are due June 17.

For more information, contact the Pa. Holstein Association, 839 Benner Pike, State College, Pa., 16801, or call 1-814-234-0364.

"We appreciate the interest of the many juniors who signed up (for the western school), and we hope their enthusiasm for judging dairy cattle will continue," stated the news release.

How To Protect From BVD

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Prevent the introduction of animals infected with Bovine Virus Diarrhea on the farm by improving biosecurity.

Following several proven practices and science-based strategies can provide a significant level of protection from this disease which can wipe out half a dairy herd on initial infection in the herd.

• Bring in only animals from uninfected herds.

• Bring in only animals from herds with a known effective vaccination program.

• Avoid the purchase of animals from sales barns.

• Test new animals for persistent infection in advance of introduction to the herd.

• Isolate new animals for 30 days before allowing contact with animals on-farm.

To increase the resistance of the herd to BVD, there are several things which can be done.

Cattle owners should vaccinate as directed by the herd veterinarian and the vaccine manufacturer's recommendations.

They should also maximize colostrum consumption by newborn calves and reduce stress on cattle caused by other diseases, poor nutrition, uncomfortable housing or poor air quality.

To decrease exposure to BVD, prevent manure contamination of cow's coats, feed and water; house baby calves in individual calf hutches; and isolate sick animals.

BVD Update:

state and federal veterinarians had been working on this case with ADL and the National Veterinary Services Laboratory (NVSL). Since then, one additional herd, in the southeastern part of the state, has been identified with the BVD virus.

Over the past year, outbreaks have occured in more than 200 Canadian herds with either no history of BVD vaccination or inadequate BVD vaccination.

(They had never received the manufacturer's recommended initial two doses of vaccine. Without the double vaccination initially, cattle won't have much protection against BVD, regardless of how many annual boosters received.)

Also, cases of BVD have been diagnosed in California, Kentucky, Michigan, New York, Ohio, and Wisconsin, as well as Pennsylvania.

Are the recent outbreaks in Ontario caused by new or different strains of BVD virus?

The BVD viruses from Ontario outbreaks apparently cause more severe disease. However, BVD viruses like these have been in the United States and other parts of Canada since at least 1987.

Will the vaccines now on the market protect against these BVD viruses?

These BVD viruses are slightly different from the viruses used in production of vaccines but still share similarities. The vaccines will protect against severe outbreaks. It is important to realize that no vaccine is 100 percent effective; some animals may get sick with BVD even if the herd has been vaccinated.

There is no evidence that one brand of vaccine is more effective than others. Research in Canada showed that field isolates from Ontario and Quebec all had some degree of cross reactivity with the vaccine strains of the virus. Consult with your veterinarian to determine the best procedure for vaccinating your herd.

When a herd that has never been vaccinated is exposed to BVD, up to 50 percent of the cattle on the farm may die. Calves, heifers and fresh cows are most susceptible.

When a herd has been vaccinated, but the vaccinations haven't been kept up, and the herd is then exposed to BVD, it is very difficult to predict what will happen.

When vaccinated during an outbreak of BVD, cattle may be only partially protected. These cattle may abort or their calves may be born weak and later die.

Keeping a "closed" herd is no excuse for not vaccinating. In fact, it is nearly impossible to keep a truly closed herd.

To determine whether you need better protection, ask yourself some questions:

• Do you hire someone to truck your own heifers or dry cows for you? Are your truckers careful about making sure their truck or trailer is clean before moving your cattle? Will your animals come into contact with other cattle or their manure when they are being transported? Does your farm share a fence line with another farm?

• Do you utilize biosecurity measures? Do you regulate how and when people come in contact with animals in your herd? When was the last time a visitor walked directly into your barn or through your pastures?

Many dairy producers and veterinarians have grown accustomed to not dealing with serious contagious diseases. Some stop vaccinating their herds; others try to cut down on the number of times they vaccinate. Unfortunately, some become lax with basic infectious disease control practices.

This information was compiled by Yvette Rauff, Larry Hutchinson, Dale Moore, Bill Sischo, Tom Drake, and Tony Castro with the Veterinary Science Department of the Pennsylvania State University Acknowledgement goes to Dr Robert Trembley, of Ontario, Canada, for the use of multiple excerpts from his extension publications.

Prices For Strawberries Top At $300 For 2-Quarts

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Camaraderie marked the Strawberry Roundup luncheon that Lancaster Rotarians sponsored for 22 4-H members and their families on Wednesday at the Farm and Home Center.

Despite problems with frost and the difficulty of raising berries to reach their prime on the Roundup Day, 4-H'ers who persevered to raise top quality berries this year were rewarded by the generous bids of the Rotarians.

Top bidding for the grand champion berries rose to $300 — an incredible price according to 12-year-old Diana Erb who awakened at 4:50 a.m. to pick her prize-winning berries.

"I picked five flats of berries and spread them out on the picnic table. From those, I picked the biggest to bring," Diana said.

A sixth-grader at Locust Grove School, Diana also helps her parents, Jim and Romaine Erb, at the Brooklawn Farm Market located along Route 501. She plans to reinvest some of the prize winning money for next year's crop and to put the remaining money in the bank.

Donald Horn of Pennfield Corporation counted out the prize-winning dollars. He consistently supports the 4-H Roundup by offering top bids.

With the hope that his wife will make a strawberry pie, Timothy Peters, president of Lancaster Rotary, paid $100 for the reserve champion berries raised by Lynn Ressler. The 4-H'er said he grows 175 plants for his project. It was the third year for 12-year-old Lynn's participation in the Roundup.

"This year I entered a different variety — Late Glo — they are bigger," he said.

The sixth grader at the Swift Middle School plans "to stick the money in the bank."

Lynn is the son of Leon and Lou Ann Ressler of Peach Bottom.

Auctioneer Harold Keller said that the Rotary Club sponsors the annual event to encourage entrepreneurship, perseverance in completing a project, and responsibility.

Each 4-H member is allowed to enter two quarts to be auctioned during the luncheon. A listing of the members and the amount paid for the berries follows:

Megan Holloway of Peach Bottom, $65; Neil Wenger of Manheim, $75; Lee Ressler of Peach Bottom, $80; Derek Stoner of Lancaster, $55; Brian Hess of Lancaster, $40; Kandi Mullen of Peach Bottom, $30; Jimmy Mullen of Peach Bottom, $30; Mike Yost of Lancaster, $27.50; Mark Leaman of Lancaster, $25; Steve Leaman of Lancaster $27.50; Janine Leaman of Lancaster, $22.50; Cate McMahon of Kirkwood, $22.50; Darelle Leaman of Lancaster, $22.50; Stephanie Dagen of Manheim, $20; Andrea Viso of Holtwood, $22.50; Kendra Bucher of Manheim, $17.50; Elizabeth Greiner of Manheim, $20; Melissa Holloway of Peach Bottom, $20; Joey Brubaker of Quarryville, $15; and Collette Adams of Lancaster, $30.

Farmer Letters Needed On PBT Issue

ALBANY, N.Y. — New York Farm Bureau has been lobbying hard to win an agricultural exemption to the petroleum business tax (PBT) on the on-farm use of diesel fuel, residual fuels, and gasoline.

According to NYFB President Charles Wille, "The exemption on the diesel and residual fuels, which was Governor Cuomo's initiative, has passed the Senate. However, the refund on gasoline is another story. Farmer letters could play a critical role in securing the exemption on all three fuels."

With the legislature only weeks away from adjournment and the state budget still unsettled, Farm Bureau is urging every farmer to drop a note to Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver and New York Governor Mario Cuomo. Farmer letters are critical if this refund is to become reality. Send letters as soon as possible to Honorable Sheldon Silver, Speaker, NYS Assembly, Albany, NY 12248 and Honorable Mario M. Cuomo, Governor, Executive Chamber, State Capitol, Albany, NY 12224.

Wille labeled the refund on gasoline a bread and butter issue for family farmers. "Small family farmers often have older equipment that uses gasoline instead of diesel. A refund from the PBT for the on-farm use of gasoline would give smaller New York farm operations a much needed boost in net income."

Farmers in every Northeast state, except New York and Connecticut, are free of fuel taxes on the on-farm use of petroleum products. Wille said that New York lawmakers should grant this refund, if they expect New York farmers to stay competitive with their neighbors and remain a viable part of local economies across the state.

New York farmers pay the following rates for the PBT on the on-farm use of petroleum products gasoline, $0.1484 per gallon; diesel fuel, $0.0805 per gallon; commercial heating oil, $0.1403 per gallon; and heavy oils, $0.1242 per gallon.

Butler First Woman On Pa. DHIA Board

she held before running for the DHIA seat.

"I've had a general knowledge of the whole association for quite a few years," she said when asked why she wanted to be on the board.

"I felt someone with my experience in having paid technicians and understanding how the technicians are being paid, could be a contribution to the Board.

"You need something in your life as a challenge to look forward to. It is a challenging time and I thought (being on the Board) would be a challenge I would enjoy." She raked a determined hand through her hair as she talked.

"The State Association is fast changing, the whole system will be undergoing changes." She explained how, although many of the counties have merged, they still have their own individual pricing systems. One of her goals is to bring all of the merged counties together under a single pricing system. "We need to bring them together as one group."

Besides her responsibilities with DHIA, Marian works with her husband, Oliver, on the Butler farm, Pagomar (derived from the names of Oliver's parents, Pauline and George, as well as Oliver and Marian). Besides doing the bookkeeping, Marian takes care of the cows, works with the vet, and does most of the milking.

Oliver helps milk in the morning and oversees the field work.

The Butlers have a 61-stanchion barn with 61 registered Holsteins and 45 heifers and calves. They raise all their own replacements.

Their program for caring for the cows has evovled over the years. The cows are fed totally in the barn. What pasture the herd gets is purely for exercise, which is done in the morning for lack of shade.

"Last year we were turning the herd out in a field across the road," said Marian. "We used a large sluice which ran underneath the road to get the herd to and from the field. For some reason, our somatic cell count skyrocketed, so this year we are keeping the herd in the barn to see if the somatic cell count can be better controlled."

Their feeding system has also changed as their herds' needs have changed. Ten years ago the Butlers went from using corn silage and hay to haylage with high moisture corn and soybeans. In fact, they were one of the first farms in the county to raise and roast soybeans for feed.

A TMR cart was added to the farm two years ago. The cows are divided into two milking groups for feeding: 80 to 85 pounds, and 50 pounds. No top dressing is used, but hay is given on the side.

The Butlers own 400 acres and rent another 350. They raise 160 acres of high moisture corn and corn silage, 85 acres of soybeans, 70 acres of alfalfa, 100 acres of hay, and 30 acres of oats. Additives such as proteins and minerals are purchased.

Their herd average is 18,538 pounds of milk, with 3.2 percent or 593 pounds of fat and 3.2 percent or 592 pounds of protein.

The herd is housed in a 50'x150' barn, 50 feet high. Built in 1911, it is a well-known landmark and often the subject of paintings and photographs.

Other buildings on Pagomar include a 40-foot by 96-foot heifer barn, and a 40-foot by 96-foot machine shed with a 24-foot by 40-foot machine shop inside where they do their own repairs.

The Butlers have three children: Scott, 25, a mechanical engineer recently graduated from Temple University; Amanda, 22, another recent graduate with studies in child life at Juniata; and Jason, 14, an 8th grader at the Wellsboro Middle School.

Already, their youngest is quite capable as a farmer who does everything on the farm except combining oats and soybeans.

His mother beams as she talks about her children, especially her younger son, "Jason has had more of an opportunity to do a lot more of the farm work, probably because the other two are not home to help."

She said while his plans for the future may include college, she thinks he has a keener interest in the farm than her two older children do, so he will probably come back to the farm to work after college.

"There are cycles in life everyone goes through," Marian said, contemplating her own future. And most certainly, her role in DHIA has spun her in a whole new direction. She said she very much wants to help educate the public about farmers.

Her eyes sparked with conviction as she spoke. "The farmers are not the culprits. This is coming out finally as evidence in the Chesapeaker Bay controversy."

She cites articles in Good Housekeeping and John Deere's magazine as testimony.

"There's are so many laws a farmer has to observe when spraying his fields. And more laws are in the making. A farmer cannot afford to spend any more on herbicides and pesticides than necessary. Yet there are no regulations for those chemicals that are put on golf courses and lawns. And where do those chemicals go but straight into the sewer. There's got to be a compromise somewhere.

"I just can't think the general public has any concept what the farmer goes through, that we sell wholesale and buy retail. Farming is not a 9-to-5 job where you take weekends off and go to the lake with your boat. If people don't wake up and realize it, there won't be any family farmers left."

She paused and gazed out her kitchen window at her farm, her cause. There is so much that needs to be done. But Marian Butler will do what she can.

Oliver Butler and son Scott prepare a sprayer for field work.

NFU Wants Investigation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Recent large drops in the prices of fed cattle and soybeans have led the National Farmers Union to call for a Justice Department investigation into possible price manipulation and antitrust violations on the part of buyers.

In a letter to Assistant Attorney General Anne Bingaman, NFU President Leland Swenson said he believes the precipitous market price drops are "a direct result of the highly concentrated, oligopolistic structure of the marketing, transportation, processing, retailing, and trading industry."

Cattle futures prices have dropped 13 percent in just the last four weeks, according to NFU, while soybean futures went down the daily 20 cent limit several days this week. Farmers in several Midwest areas found themselves unable to sell soybeans at all to local elevators. Some farmers believe buyers simply held out until prices dropped rather than paying farmers more.

"Agriculture policymakers in the U.S. have been pushing the issue of more market flexibility for farmers," said Swenson. "But, as soybean farmers have once again experienced this week, many times farmers have no marketing flexibility because of the lack of market competition."

Swenson also pointed out that the slide in cattle prices of $20 per hundredweight over the past year comes at a time when beef exports to Mexico have reportedly "surged" as a result of the North American Free Trade Agreement. Traders received a 20 percent reduction in tariffs on beef exported to Mexico when NAFTA went into effect.

All in all, Swenson says the "inequities" associated with the price drops result in economic hardship for producers and emotional stress on farm families as a result.

"Today's farmers and ranchers must be competitive business managers, but the unjustifiable market manipulation results in every decision made by producers to be a make or break decision."

NFU believes antitrust laws should be enforced to limit the control over farm product marketing, processing, retailing, and trading that only a handful of firms enjoy today. In cattle, 75 percent of slaughtering is done by four firms. Soybean crushing is handled to a great extent by only two firms.

Diversification At Heart Of Farm Survival For Award-Winning Sorghum Grower

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Making the best of dwindling opportunities has been the handiwork of the Schmalz Brothers Farm.

For the past several years, in which drought has ruled the growing season, Dick Schmalz has made the best of bleak opportunities. Instead of growing a lot of acres of corn, which requires excellent growing conditions for an optimum crop, he decided years ago to plant grain sorghum — which actually loves droughty weather.

For his enterprises, Schmalz was recently awarded first place in the National Grain Sorghum Producers Yield Contest for Pennsylvania. The Bucks County cash crop farmer planted Dekalb 37 for a harvest of 90.52 bushels per acre — topping the county and state yields.

And the best part is, he used "poor ground," he said, to grow it, with real droughty type soil. The sorghum, which he sells to the specialty bird food market, doesn't like too much rain. "That's why I plant it — for those dry summers," he said.

Began to diversify

Together with brother, Charles Jr., and Dick's wife Carole and family — including sons Jeff, 31, Mike, 30, and Brian 32 — Schmalz has been cash crop farming since serving in the the Army in 1953. Almost immediately, he began to diversify, selling fertilizer, seed corn (for Dekalb), and linking up to a variety of custom operator businesses, everything from spreading lime to plowing snow.

Schmalz farms 625 acres of entirely leased land. Of those 625 acres, 125 are in corn, 100 in wheat, and 75 in soybean. The remainder — all 250 acres — are in sorghum.

He began planting sorghum in 1963. For several years, Schmalz stopped selling after, he said, he lost the market. But he re-entered the market ion 1989, realizing "it's a good crop for us around here," he said.

"It's a wonderful hog feed," said Dick. "It's going to be the coming crop."

Peak of operation

At the peak of his farm operation, in the early 1970s, Schmalz and his family were farming about 1,500 acres. But because of equipment and labor expenses, the farm has downscaled. Now, the farm operation sells fertilizer, seed corn, and the product from the leased acreage.

"Most of the customers I have have been coming for years and years to buy the fertilizer," said Dick.

The main office is on land purchased from Dick's father, Charles Sr., a "glazer" (a stained glass craftsman). About 5 acres are devoted to the grain and seed business, including a scale and the bulk of J&R Supply, a wholesale landscape supply company owned by Jeff Schmalz.

Farms disappearing

Diversification is necessary in a county in which, because of taxes and a near-depleted agricultural economy, farms and farmers are disappearing at a rapid rate. Where once there were dozens of feed mills and hundreds of farms, now there are a handful of farmers and one mill.

At a dizzying rate, houses are replacing the lush, agriculturally rich countryside.

Up the road, near one of the farms of which Schmalz leases, houses worth $500,000-$700,000 are being built at a rapid pace. Homeowners from New York, Philadelphia, and Allentown don't mind the hour- to two-hour commute time.

"I can't see where they get the money to buy these houses," said Dick. "They are $500-, $600-, $700,000 houses. And the young kids are buying them — 21- and 22-year-old kids!"

Mills gone

Increasingly, agricultural opportunities are disappearing in the county.

"We only got one feed mill in the whole county," said Schmalz. "We don't have any markets. There were a lot of feed mills once, but now they're just gone."

To blame for the lack of agriculture are the increasingly high taxes, the lack of major parts and implement dealers, the higher costs of farm supplies, and the uncertain market for cash products from the farm.

"The way the prices are coming down every day, I don't know," said Schmalz.

Can't hang on

"It's an older population," said Carole Schmalz. "The people that

Pa. FFA Summer Convention

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The members of the Pennsylvania FFA Association are preparing for their 65th State FFA Activities Week to be held June 14-15 at the Pennsylvania State University.

The general sessions will be held in Eisenhower Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m., and the final sessions are Thursday morning at 9 a.m. More than 1,250 FFA members, advisors, and guests are expected to attend.

The convention will feature three general sessions. Tuesday evening will be a celebration of the 65th FFA anniversary as well as recognizing Honorary Keystone Degree recipients, state officer parents, and a special presentation by hypnotist, Dr. Jim Wand. Wednesday evening the featured speaker will be Tyler Grandil, National FFA western region vice president. We will also be recognizing state citation winners, proficiency recipients, listening to the state chorus, and paying tribute to the FFA Foundation sponsors. Dairylea Hires Anna

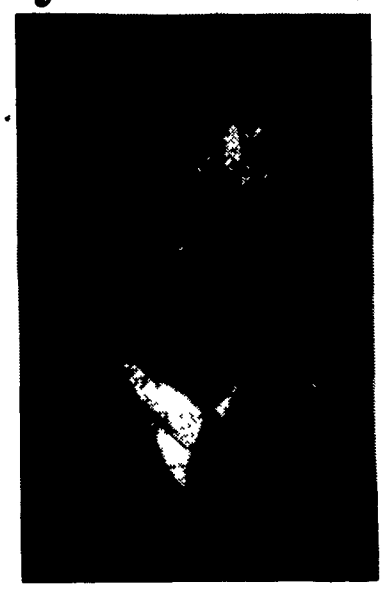
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Edward D. Anna of Batavia, N.Y., has joined Dairylea as director of corporate development. As such, he will serve in a senior management position with respect to Dairylea operations, including membership, milk marketing, affiliate and industry relations, milk pricing, and regulatory matters.

"Ed Anna brings a wealth of experience and knowledge to the Dairylea team," Chief Executive Officer Rick Smith said. "His extensive dairy background will complement and strengthen our management team. We expect Ed to be a key asset and to make an invaluable contribution in our dealing with an increasingly complex industry."



Edward D. Anna

Prior to joining Dairylea, Anna established DDM (Dairy Development and Marketing) Consultants in Batavia, N.Y. In this capacity, Anna represented a variety of cooperative and proprietary organizations, while at the same time, serving as president of United Dairy Services. As president, he assisted in more than doubling United's membership, while significantly decreasing costs over three years.

Anna worked in several senior administrative positions before entering the consulting field. He was general manager of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency for three years and was executive vice president of the Empire Cheese Group of H.P. Hood, in Cuba, N.Y., for two years, where he was responsible for all operations.

In addition, he served as assistant general manager for Upstate Milk Cooperatives for eight years, where his efforts contributed to the cooperative's success in acquiring eight processing plants, doubling its marketing area, and expanding its product line.

Earlier in his career, Anna taught dairy food and environmental science at the State University of New York at Canton.

Anna received a bachelor's degree in agriculture acience from the University of Georgia and a master's degree in food science from North Carolina State University. He supplemented his science-oriented degrees with a business administration emphasis.

Anna serves on the Board of Directors for Genesee County Cooperative Extension and on the Agricultural Advisory Council for the State University of New York at Alfred. He also has been associated with the New York State Milk and Food Sanitarians and the New York State Cheese Manufacturers Association.

Red Power Roundup Set

HOOKSTOWN (Beaver Co.) — The 5th annual Red Power Roundup will be hosted by the Beaver Valley Antique Equipment & Crafts Association, Inc. here on September 15-18.

Plans are being finalized for this to be the largest gathering of International Harvester equipment on the East Coast.

The Beaver Valley Antique Equipment & Crafts Association, Inc., is a nonprofit group formed in November 1983 to encourage and foster knowledge of farming and industrial procedures of the past, to promote fellowship and good times between old and young, and to commemorate all persons who invented and used these machines and procedures.

The national and worldwide club of International Harvester Collectors was formed in July 1990.

At this year's show, there will be daily activities of threshing of grain, baling of straw, cutting corn into silage, steam engine operating, making of apple butter, crafts, tractor games, flea market, gas engines, kids games, plus much more. Daily parades and nightly events are also scheduled.

There are several motels and campgrounds in the area. The greater Pittsburgh International Airport is just 25 minutes away. For more information, contact the secretary, Mary Kaye Shutt, (412) 573-4404.

Diversification At Heart Of Farm Survival

owned it are getting older. They just can't hang on to it, with the taxes. All the farmers are in their 60s. There are very few young farmers."

Their son, Jeff, realized the living to be made in the ever-expanding lawn and garden industry. Dick said that Jeff started selling fertilizer and grass seed and saved the money from helping with the farm business to fuel the landscape supply house he operates.

For Dick, he ends up traveling to Lancaster to sell his feed and to pick up all his equipment, parts, and supplies.

Waiting for conditions

For now, Dick is concentrating on the weather, waiting for drier conditions to settle in before finishing the sorghum planting. (Sorghum requires a soil temperature of at least 60 degrees to grow.)

On average, Schmalz harvests nearly 100 bushels per acre of sorghum and about 150 bushels per acre of shelled corn. Last year, everything came out right for the corn. The soybeans, however, didn't do as well, averaging only 30 bushels per acre, way under the profit margin for Schmalz.

Some ground has a lot of rocks, and the condition of the sorghum soil is red shale and lots of clay, sand, and stones.

He regularly limes the soil (about every three years per individual tract) to an average of about 150 acres per year. Also, he carefully monitors weed conditions to ensure the right herbicides are used. Insects haven't been a problem.

Try other varieties

The variety of sorghum seed he used was new. Dick said he wants to try other varieties for this growing season.

Dick and Carole picked up the sorghum award at the 1993 convention in Nashville, Tenn. They enjoyed the trip to Tennessee and have looked forward to other such events.

"It's nice to talk to other people around the country and see how they do things," said Carole.

"You talk to those farmers out there, (and they say) 'I farm 10,000-15,000 acres or so.'" said Dick. "Their garden is probably as big as my whole farm operation!"

Before, at the farm's peak, Schmalz and family owned two lime spreaders, a tractor-trailer, and another truck. But something was always going wrong with the equipment, which meant nothing but headaches to the family, according to Carole.

"We have the trucking, we have the lime spreading, he hauls in fertilizer, he has Dekalb, that's enough," said Carole.

"We were the biggest farm spreader in Bucks County for a long time, until we scaled down," said Dick.

In the past, according to Dick, farmers cash-cropped fresh-market fruits and vegetables and made a good living. But not anymore.

Carole acknowledged that farming has been a tradition for her husband.

"Our businesses have supported our farming, and they always have," said Carole. "Farming is something that he does because he loves to do it, but we couldn't make a living on farming. We couldn't have raised the kids and sent Michael to college and had any kind of life if it hadn't been for all the businesses that Dick started."

Rosie's Creative Cakes Frosted With Flair

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — What does cake decorating have to do with farming?

A lot, if it's Rosie Rohrer talking.

"It's a lot like farm life. You don't plan, you just roll with the punches," says this peppy, petite farmwife and mother of two.

Rosie got her start in cake decorating at 4-H. By the time she was 11 or 12 years old, she was selling cakes to friends, and by the time she was 13, Rosie made her first wedding cake.

"Then I was too naive to be nervous about decorating a wedding cake, but I look back now and I'm embarrassed," Rosie said.

There is no need for Rosie to be embarrassed about the cakes she decorates today. Her intricate designed cakes have won top prizes in professional competition and have built a reputable name for her business called Rosie's Creative Cakes.

It was continual experimentation that honed Rosie's artistic flair on the cakes. She said, "If you master the basics, you can do a lot."

Several years after Rosie was decorating cakes, she signed up for cake decorating classes to see if she was doing things right and found out that her self-taught techniques were correct.

Hundreds of photographs of her cakes attest to the endless ideas to decorate the perfect cake for a child, hunter, farmer, seamtress, and teen-ager. Included is a basket weave design woven with frosting on the cake and decorated with fresh flowers, candles, and greens.

Rosie averages about seven to 10 small orders and one wedding cake each week. It's wedding cakes where Rosie shines. And, what she prefers to do. Sometimes she does three wedding cakes a week.

Rosie holds consultations with potential customers. She gives them a sample of a cake, and the client pages through hundreds of photos of cakes to choose the right one.

"What they want is not always what they can afford," Rosie said. "But we can often tailor a cake to the bride's expectations and price allowance."

Since Rosie established her own business, she likes the personal contact with customers.

"Brides have little impact on package deals offered through restaurants. Here, customers know what they are getting and the decorating is better quality," said Rosie, who had worked for several years for a restaurant bakeshop.

The disadvantage in working for a bakery is that the cake decorator does not talk with the customer. If the person who takes the order does not convey the exact desires of the customer, it may result in an unhappy customer.

"I like to see people's faces when they pick up a cake. To know they are pleased, and I've done what they wanted, and met their expectations means a lot. You miss this gratitude when you work for a shop," she said.

"Interaction with customers is very important. Some people don't know the options. I can do more for a bride," she said.

Rolled fondant, a European type of frosting that is rolled with a rolling pin and molded unto the cake, is a popular trend but it is much more expensive than the ordinary royal icing cake.

There are ways of attaining a similar effect at a more economical price.

"Price should not be the only concern when choosing a cake. But often by the time the bride comes to choose her cake, it is the last thing on her list and she has already used her allottment money," said Rosie, who needs to find innovative ways to meet the bride's expectations.

Sometimes she is skeptical of some of the colors or designs that the bride wants to incorporate into the cake. But, often, she is pleasantly surprised how nice a cake turns out.

In addition to baking the wedding cake, she delivers and sets it up at the reception. This has caused some heart-stoppers for Rosie, but she has so far been able to remedy the many unforseen problems association with wedding cakes. Transportation and hot weather are not compatible with decorated cakes. One time, it was a hot summer day, and the reception was held outside. Rosie kept the cake in air conditioning until the guests were ready to be served. Another time, a glass cake plate cracked during transportation. Fortunatley Rosie always keeps a carboard plate underneath the cake, which in this case prevented a catastrophe.

Rosie uses her own recipes for the cakes. She has a separate specially-built kitchen with three ovens for her cake decorating business in the family's Manheim farmhouse at 2385 Junction Road, Manheim.

To hold the frosting, she uses parchment triangles, which she folds and inserts decorating tips into it. She prefers to use metal seamless tips instead of plastic ones.

It required a lot of practice for Rosie to learn to write in perfect script. She uses a swivel platform or a straw when making flowers because it adds more height and dimension, she said. To color the frosting, she uses gum paste or powder for glistening and luster as opposed to liquid coloring that thins frosting and does not produce as vibrant colors. Liquid is used for airbrush designs.

Rosie has found word-of-mouth the best form of advertising for her business.

"I'm as busy as I want to be and sometimes busier than I want to be," said Rosie who also helps her husband with farm work.

Rosie's husband, Dwight, farms 60 acres of tobacco, potatoes, tomatoes, corn, and soybeans. He finishes about 100-head of steers yearly. He also is a milk tester substitute, which takes him all over the county three to four days a week.

The couple's sons, Ryan, 3½,

This Victorian Gingerbread House is another favorite of Rosie's.

This tiered wedding cake is a spectacular display made by Rosie who always transports and sets up the wedding cakes.

Rolled fondant is rolled with a rolling pin and molded onto the cake. The lacy edging, pearls, satin ribbon, and flowers give it a romantic touch, perfect for a wedding.

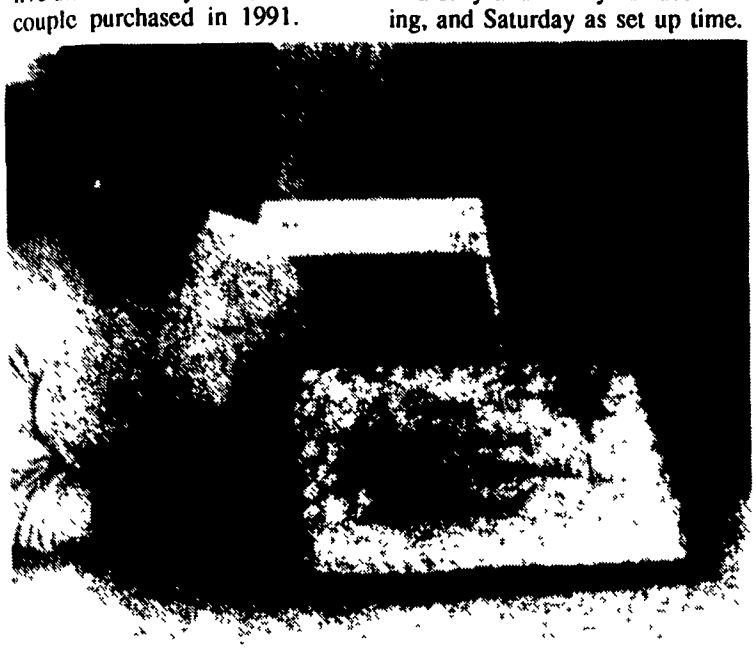
and Tyler, 2 months, are the seventh-generation of Rohrers to live on the century farm, which the couple purchased in 1991.

Rosie loves working outside in the flower beds and lawn. Her tentative schedule reserves Tuesday and Wednesday as baking day; Thursday and Friday for decorating, and Saturday as set up time.



Rosie averages about 7 to 10 of these types of cakes weekly and one wedding cake.

Monday is the day she helps her husband with such things as planting tomatoes, driving the tractor for tobacco planting or harvesting, or loading steers. Caring for the children and housekeeping duties are somehow squeezed into it.

"I'm glad Dwight's parents live nearby and can help out with babysitting. Otherwise, I just roll with the punches," Rosie said of her need to meet family and career responsibilities.

Occasionally, she teaches cake decorating classes at the Cake and Kandy Emporium in East Petersburg, and has judged cake decorating at the 4-H Roundup.

Rosie would like to have more time to enter contests. At the York White Rose Cake Show last year she won several first places and the Best of Show. She also won a scholarship that entitles her to pick any professional teacher for a week of private instruction in cake decorating. Rosie plans to travel to Texas to study forming gum paste flowers that are hand molded one petal at a time.

Rosie's Creative Cakes is located at 2385 Junction Road, Manheim, PA 17545. Call (717) 898-9156 for an appointment.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"C'mon girls . . . Let's go!"

Several "girls" are already waiting. They stand patiently on the opposite side of the wide gate that blocks the rear entrance to the dairy barn. At the distant, wooded edge of the exercise lot, a few more "girls" rise from where they lay, lounging in the shade. Others simply glance toward the barn, reluctant to budge.

"You're gonna' have to move, Mick," I suggest to the big, tame cow blocking the gate. Recently fresh, Mick is anxious to get to her stall near the front of the barn, both for the generous helping of feed waiting there and for relief from the pressure of milk in her full udder.

Mick slowly maneuvers back a few steps, so that I can swing the wide gate open far enough to let the early birds into the barn. Mick, Marvina, Best, Walnut, Mistress, Cashew, and Birdie will usually be among those first into the barn. Dawdling around at the tail and will be the likes of Bonnie, Lilac, McCall, and Gail.

Putting the cows in for milking is generally a two-person job, but this sunny afternoon, everyone but me is in the hayfields. Most of the older cows know their stalls anyway, and the summer flush of new, exciteable heifers haven't yet calved and joined the milking herd. Only a few of the girls, who after milking several months, still have no clue about where they belong. Or pretend they don't.

A side trip to the beedbunk turns up Pebbles and Bonnie, lingering at the silage while the rest of the herd rests in the pasture. Bonnie, a laid-back pet, ignores me. It takes an affectionate swat on the rump to finally get her in gear and headed toward the barn. Meanwhile, the last of the woods loungers are slowly rising. A few, showing their age, walk stiffly at first as if none of their joints wants to work.

Many of the cows are already in their stalls, busy munching, by the time I reach the front end of the dairy barn and begin putting the rest in their rightful places. After working my way back the length of the barn. I sneak around the back gate to chase Splash. Splash is standing just outside the door, but won't come the last three steps inside on her own. She spots me coming and heads the other way, taking refuge in a small offset corner a few yards away, where entrances to several of the cow lots join.

Huddled in a corner with Splash is Punkin, making goo-goo eyes at the young bull who is bellowing about his virility on the opposite side of the fance. His tone changes to irritation when I herd Punkin and Splash away toward the barn.

Another trip up and down the length of the barn and the girls are in their proper places, even Bonnie, though we paraded back and forth past her stall a couple of times until she got the hint.

But every job seems to have the proverbial fly in the ointment; this one's name is Lilac. Lilac is a first-calf heifer milking cow for several months, knows the afternoon routine, but has no plans of adjusting to it. She simply refuses to go into her stall. After passing it for the fifth time, Lilac hops into another nearby, vacant stall. Aw, the heck with it, I figure. And leave her there, untied.

By milking time, Lilac has backed out of the wrong stall she insisted on taking and stands, defiant in the alleyway. Now, with two of us on hand to corral her, Lilac promptly hops right into her own place.

I wonder sometimes: between cows and people, who outsmarts who?

Woodward To Crown Kay Hostler

MIRIAM WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

MIFFLINTOWN (Juniata Co.) — The crowning of the 1994-95 Juniata County Dairy Princess, Melissa (Missy) Kay Hostler, will take place on Saturday, June 18, at the Walker Grange Hall in Mexico at 8:00 p.m.

The public is invited to attend to honor the princess and dairy maids who will promote dairy products starting July 1. Missy will be crowned by retiring Princess, Becky Woodward, who has done an outstanding job in dairy promotion during her reign.

With great enthusiasm, Becky has fulfilled the purpose of a dairy princess to promote the consumption and sale of milk and dairy products to consumers and to create a better understanding between rural and urban people through one-to-one contact at the local level.

By the end of her reign, Becky will have been at 16 schools; 21 different groups; 10 stores; three banks; a post office; pie judging; Wellness Fair; Grange ice cream festival; Senior Citizens picnic & Senior Citizens Recognition Dinner; seven parades and carnivals; four days at Juniata County Fair; four days at Heritage Days in East Waterford, Pa.; Farm Show; Hershey Bears' Game; 10 farm-related meetings or activities and other promotion activities.

At each of these events, Becky has either served dairy-relation products such as sundaes or has spoken on the value of drinking milk or using dairy-related products. In addition to these activities, Becky has done 39 newspaper articles, 24 radio spots/-interviews and her dairy essay for the state. So great was becky's ability to plan and carry out special events to promote the dairy industry that she was runner-up in March for Promotor of the Month in the state, as listed in the Pennsylvania Cow-Municator.

The most popular event of her reign was the celebrity cow milking contest held at Lebkicher's Family Treat, whose specialty is ice cream. Four local celebrities (admittedly "greenhorns" at milking) milked the two cows taken there for the event. Each team of two managed to get about an inch of milk in their buckets in the allotted time!

As her final promotion and gift to the community, Becky will have a 125-foot long cheese hoagie at IGA on Saturday, June 18.

Becky graduated from Juniata High School in 1993. Although she continued to help on the farm, she decided to take no outside job so that she could devote the entire year to her duties as dairy princess.

Becky Woodward continues to work on the farm while promoting dairy products.

Making Home Improvements

This past weekend my husband and I spent some time on home improvements. We worked in the backyard on our lawn and painted the front porch railings and columns. I felt really satisfied to see the improvements in our property's appearance. It felt good to work hard and to see positive results.

But the whole process of doing home improvements started me thinking about the really important home improvements that are sometimes neglected. Sometimes families spend a lot of time, energy, and money keeping the outside house and property looking great but forget to devote as much time, energy, and money to sustaining and strengthening the relationships inside that really make a house a home.

Recently, I met with a group of friends from my church, and we were sharing thoughts with each other on this topic. Each of us had to answer a series of questions: "Between the ages of 7 and 12, where did you live? How did you heat your home? What was the source of warmth in your home?"

Well the first two could be answered quickly, but the third one took some thought. What was the source of warmth in my home? My ideas began to churn...family celebrations around the kitchen table, my Dad, late night singing in our bedrooms, Sunday night silliness, Mom reading to us in front of the living room fireplace, the daily rituals of saying hello and good-bye.

All these things increased the "warmth" in my growing up home.

How would you answer that question? What do you think is the source of warmth in your home today? It's so easy to let the hours and days slip by and forget to "feed the fire" that keeps our homes and our lives warmed with expressions of care and love. It takes time and commitment to transform a house into a home where people are welcomed, where children (and adults) feel safe and loved. In addition to manicuring the flower beds and brightening the siding, take some time out this weekend to improve the relationships within your home. Here are some ideas to try:

• Take time to sit down with the other people in your home. Ask each person to share one thing that they'd like to do this summer. Just listen to the ideas. Absorb them; don't critique them.

• Complete a "gratitude check." Every day this week, ask each member of your home to share one thing they are thankful for. Include even your youngest children in this.

• Be silly today at least once with the others in your home. Look for natural highs with your family-adventures, creating music or art, cuddling, laughter. Look for beautiful sunsets and rainbows.

• Make a date with your parent. Take them someplace they used to take you when you were younger. This may make a great IOU present for Father's Day!

In the midst of all the spring and summer activities to spruce up your home and yard, don't forget to invest the best of your time in the home improvements that really matter. Take time to strengthen and celebrate your family.

They say a picture is worth a thousand words. When it comes to genuine dairy products, the "picture" is a drop of milk encircling the single word "REAL."

The REAL Seal, as it's come to be known by marketers and consumers alike, speaks volumes about the genuine dairy content and quality of the products it adorns.

It's assurance to consumers that a dairy product meets rigorous standards to identify uniformity, value, and wholesomeness. Consumers can tell at a glance if an item is a genuine dairy product.

When it comes to cooking, dishes made with dairy products far out-tastes those made with imitation products. These are cream of the top recipes from our readers. Enjoy!

ORANGE DESSERT

1 large container whipped cottage cheese
20 ounce can crushed pineapple
2 cans mandarin oranges
1 large box orange Jell-O
1 small box orange Jell-O
1 large container whipped cream topping

Drain fruit; whip cottage cheese; add Jell-O granules; add fruit; fold in whipped cream. Refrigerate.

My husband and I enjoy very much the Lancaster Farming. We have subscribed to it for many years. Although we live in western Pennsylvania and in farming territory, our love is for the farm area of Lancaster County. The countryside is so clean and the roads and farm lanes are all paved and in good repair. We own a 100-acre farm, but most of it is in woodland and about 23 acres of it is farmed by a neighbor farmer.

EASY CHOCOLATE CHIP CHEESE CAKE

¾ cup sugar
¼ cup flour
2 eggs
2 8-ounce packages cream cheese
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup chocolate chips, divided

Place all ingredients except ½ cup chocolate chips in bowl and mix until smooth. Pour into a greased 8-inch cake pan. Bake at 350 degrees about 30 minutes or just until center if puffed and dry. Spread the remaining ½ cup chocolate chips over the top. Wait about 3 or 4 mintes until chips melt, spread evenly with a knife. Cool. Chill well before serving.

My husband Gary and I don't currently live on a farm, but while I was growing up in Maryland, I spent a great deal of time on my uncle's farm. I learned a lot there, not only about animals and farming but also cooking, people, and life.

I like to cook, make crafts, and write in my sparetime—what little I have with a busy husband and two step sons.

This is a recipe for one of our favorite desserts. I hope you like it.

SPAGHETTI PIZZA

Cook spaghetti and drain. Put spaghetti in bowl with beaten egg, milk, butter, and ½ cup mozarella cheese. Mix well and place in greased cookie sheet. Put on remaining cheeses, sauce, and pepperoni. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-45 minutes.

This is a recipe that our daughter Carol Pifer made up when she was the 1984-1985 Jefferson County dairy princess. It was one of the recipes that she passed out when she did a program as dairy princess. It has been a family favorite ever since. Carol continues to make this receipe for her husband, Larry Shields, and daughter, Jenalee.

1 can crushed pineapple, drained
8-ounces whipped cream topping
1 can cherry pie filling
1 can condensed milk

Mix well together by folding mixture with a spoon. Let stand for several hours or overnight.

While staying overnight years ago, we were served this dessert. We never got the true name for the recipe so we named it after our host. It's a nice quick and simple dessert that goes well after a heavy or light meal.

Hi! My name is Lucinda Walker, and I live on a dairy farm near Somerset with my husband Kurt and 4-year-old son, Daniel.

I love to try new recipes, and Kurt and Daniel (4 kid people) are my guinea pigs. They seem to enjoy being them, too.

This recipe is easy to make and delicious. It's a meal in one.

Featured Recipe

This recipe is used at the Agricultural Museum of York County for a children's activity on dairying and milk. It can also be used by teachers or youth group advisors with dairy and farming studies. Many dairy princesses use it during school promotions. You may want to try it at home.

ICE CREAM IN A CAN

1 egg
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla instant pudding
1 cup milk
1 cup half-and-half
Dash of vanilla
Rock salt
Crushed ice
Plastic cling wrap

Put all ingredients, except for ice and salt, in a bowl and beat. Pour the mixture into a one-pound coffee can. Cover with plastic wrap and then the plastic lid. Place the container in a three-pound coffee can. Pack ice and salt around the smaller can and cover with a plastic lid. Roll the can on the floor for about 20 minutes. If the center of the ice cream is still soft, place the containers in a freezer to harden.

One recipe makes about four servings.

Note: Suitable substitutes for one-pound and three-pound coffee cans are the 13-ounce and 39-ounce sizes.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Since many June brides will be combining marriage with a career, a microwave oven may be an ideal wedding gift from a parent or a group of friends.

Because the marketplace offers microwave ovens in many styles, sizes, wattages, features and prices, the purchaser must consider the advantages and disadvantages of each model and feature. It pays to shop comparatively for prices and features.

The microwave oven has been adapted in a variety of models, styles, and combinations. The countertop model is still the most common, but models are available which can be built-in above a counter or range or in a wall.

Countertop ovens require a 120-volt circuit. The controls for time and power can be dials, slide bars, push buttons, or touch pads. They can be operated mechanically or electronically.

Some models have separate controls and some have a single, multi-purpose control. The ovens with microprocessor controls offer great capabilities, such as wider range of power setting, digital readouts, precise time, temperature, power control, and humidity sensors.

The output of power generally ranges from 525 watts to 900 watts. This is the power available in the oven for cooking food. The higher the power output, the more microwave activity and the more quickly food will cook.

Most food manufacturers write preparation instructions on food packages for microwave ovens that have 650 watts. Ovens that have 525 maximum wattage tend to be the smaller, less expensive, less elaborate, simple models. The ovens with a lower wattage will require a longer cooking time for most foods.

All ovens are available with a full power setting. Ovens with variable power levels have as many as 10 power level settings.

Some models have a temperature probe which is a device that allows microwaves to cook food a predesignated temperature rather than for a predesignated time. This device is particularly good for meats, but should not be used with baked goods, fresh vegetables, or frozen foods. The probe helps eliminate overcooking, but it does not allow for carry-over cooking or standing time.

Other microwave ovens are available with a browning element in the top of the oven. The heat from the element browns the food, but it will brown foods slower than an element in a conventional range. Microwave foods brown best and most quickly after cooking. Browned food may be important to some people, but other people find that browned foods are not essential.

Convection/microwave ovens are also very popular because they allow for more flexibility in cooking. A consumer can cook with the microwave or convection oven or use the combination cook on convection broil feature.

The wide range of purchase prices depends on the style, model, and features of the oven. The consumer should consider whether the oven is affordable for the features wanted. Special sales or promotions may be beneficial, but only if the oven is suitable for the user.

The warranty, service competence, availability, and the seller's reputation should be other major aspects of the purchasing decision. The warranty should be considered a feature of the oven.

Full or partial coverage and the length of time varies from manufacturer to manufacturer. Because there is no standard, each warranty must be evaluated on its own merits. The cost of warranty with more coverage over a longer period of time is quite often reflected in the initial purchase price.

ANSWER — For the Lititz reader who was having trouble with hull peas turning a dull green after freezing, Emma Leid, Orrstown, said make sure the peas are planted in early spring as soon as the ground can be worked (first week in March is not too early). If you are picking peas for several hours, do not let them set but spread them out where it is cool. Pick just before pods are tight full. After blanching, submerse in cold water to cool faster. Freeze immediately. Water used in blanching can be cooled and added to peas.

Eunice Lehman, Aaronsburg, suggests the blanching time may have been wrong. Peas should be blanched 1½ minutes. Another method the Lehmans found to be satisfactory was to put raw peas in freezer containers, fill with water, and freeze. Peas are very fresh tasting this way.

ANSWER — Lavenia Campbell, Benton, was searching for a dill pickle recipe using an open crock method. Thanks to Mary M Davis, Edensburg, for sending a recipe

Crock Dill Pickles

Brine for 4 gallon crock
1 pound salt
1 pint vinegar
2 gallons water

Layer clean grape leaves on bottom of clean sterilized crock Put a layer of fresh dill on grape leaves and ½ ounce fresh mixed pickling spice and chopped garlic, if desired. Fill crock with fresh picked and washed cucumbers. Cover with dill, spices, garlic, and grape leaves. Add brine — do not heat brine. Cover with plate large enough to cover top of contents. Put jar of water or other weight on plate to hold it down. Keep in warm place (80 to 90 degrees) to ferment for 10 to 14 days. Remove any scum that forms.

When fermentation stops, store in a cold cellar. Should be ready for use in one month. May be placed in sterilized jars. After packing in jars, add fresh dill and spices. Heat brine from crock or prepare fresh using same formula. Heat brine to boiling and cool to about 160 degrees. Pour on cucumbers, seal, and store.

This cheese pie is delicious and makes about 12 to 16 servings. Top it with pie filling. I usually use the strawberry, which everyone enjoys.

We were dairy farmers and I retired and we still sell hay and make hay. We both are in our 69th year, and are busy gardening, taking care of our lawns, trimming, and whatever else there is to to do.

We still have our big meals at noon as my husband usually has someone to help put the hay in.

So it's a busy schedule when haying season is on. I do hope we have a dry summer as the past two years, it's been very wet and trying to get the hay in between the raindrops. Everyone wants good dry hay without any mold in the hay.

Juniata County Forms Seeing-Eye Puppy Club

MIRIAM WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

MIFFLINTOWN, Juniata Co. — At a meeting of members and parents on May 18, Juniata County had a first in their 4-H program. Plans for a Seeing-Eye Puppy Club came to complete fulfillment as they voted on a name for the club. After about 10 excellent suggestions, they selected the name, "Future Loving Eyes."

It was plain to see why there was much enthusiasm and excitement at this meeting. Nine boys and girls had submitted applications to receive a puppy from The Seeing Eye, Inc. Each of them will receive a puppy as they become available. Parents appeared to be as excited as their children at the prospect of taking on this challenge.

Kathy Queitzsch, 4-H agent in the Juniata County Extension Office, was in charge of the meeting. She is also the organizational leader of the club. As Kathy pointed out, having these puppies for a year is a family project. They will live in with the family, go in the car with them, and participate in all family events. After a certain age, they can even go to 4-H camp with the 4-H member. All of this is to prepare the puppy for any type of happening when it becomes a working guide dog for a sight-impaired person.

A puppy is taken to the 4-H home when about six weeks old and remains until one year old. Then the dog is taken to a place in New Jersey for three months of intensive training by The Seeing Eye, Inc. By the end of that training, the dog is ready for further training with the sight-impaired person who will receive the dog if they bond well together.

The meeting took on real meaning for the members and parents as Scott Shreffler of Mifflin County spoke to them about his guide dog, Yuma, who lay under the table at his feet the entire time. Scott told how he had spent 27 days training with his dog in New Jersey. Yuma had been with a family for a year and then received the three months of special training, just like the dogs will that come to Juniata County.

As with all trainees, the first night Scott had Yuma in his room, he was not allowed to leave the room for any reason. The trainers stress that bonding at that time between the prospective owner and the dog is of great importance. If the bonding does not take place, it is likely that the person will need a different dog. It usually takes about a week to see if they are paired well.

Scott told of the stress during training with Yuma, which was morning and afternoon, and then meetings at night. He also listened to veterinarian tapes. Training with the leash and teaching Yuma to heel was done first inside the building. There were four trainees for six people, or a total of 24 working there together.

When Scott took Yuma outside for training in his harness, Scott found that the leash in his hand made her like a "living cane" for him. Eventually he was able to "read" the dog through his harness. Training included getting Yuma up at 5:30 a.m. for bathroom, eating and drinking, and he still has that schedule as well as other regular times throughout the day.

Scott Shreffler of Lewistown as he shows his Guide Dog, Yuma, to the Juniata County 4-H Seeing-Eye Club members and family.

In New Jersey, Scott had to learn, along with Yuma, how to meet emergencies. They would be standing on the curb, preparing to go across the street. The trainers had especially trained drivers drive by within one foot of them, causing Yuma to instantly sense the dander and keep Scott from stepping down. A guide dog will not obey his master's command to cross the street if the dog sees danger, nor will he proceed while walking anywhere if there is a large hole in the ground, or an overhang or anything else which would endanger his master. If the master insists on commanding him to go on, thus overriding the dog's decision, this will confuse the dog and cause problems later.

Whenever Yuma stops when walking with him, Scott stops and feels around with his feet and hands to check out what problems there might be. Yuma is two years old, and Scott finds her to be very obedient even though there is still some puppy in her. Scott is grateful to have Yuma because she has given him his independence again after having used a cane previously. He finds no problem with taking Yuma into stores where he will ask the information desk where he can locate a certain item. In most cases employees will lead the way. Scott simply says, "follow," to Yuma who will then lead Scott in following the employee. When the employee says to go left or right, Scott repeats that to Yuma who then is ready to follow the turning of the employee.

Scott went on to say that it is important for the public to know that they are not to pet or feed a guide dog. Yuma knows that she is not allowed to sniff in a grocery store or restaurant and so is cuffed on the snout as a form of discipline if she does so. "Phooey" is a correction word for her when she is in deep trouble. Discipline is a very important part of her training, as is affection from her master.

Yuma gets along well with Scott's wife and two children, but no one may pet her except Scott. They have a pet Black Lab outdoors. Homes with guide dogs may have cats or dogs in the house, but they must be introduced to the guide dog outside the house and not on the pets' domain. Guide dogs should not be shown favoritism over the family's pets.

A trainer from The Seeing Eye, Inc. is always on call if Scott should need help with Yuma for any reason.

Also present at the meeting were two adults with the seeing-eye puppies who are in their care. Candy Kirch of Snyder County has a beautiful 12-week-old Golden Retriever named Nickie who has been with Candy for three weeks. This is the seventh seeing-eye dog that Candy has had.

Jo-Anne Brooks of Mifflintown has a handsome one-year-old Black Labrador named O'Malley. This is the thirteenth seeing-eye dog that Jo-Anne has had. When asked how they can keep these precious dogs for a year or more and then give them up, both women said that they keep in mind such people as Scott who is now independent because of his dog. Seeing the look in the eyes of Scott's mother, as she spoke of the help that Yuma is to Scott, was representative of all of those who have been helped by this program, and makes it possible for them to give up the puppies when the time comes.

It was announced at the meeting that the next day the first 4-H puppy would be brought to Juniata County to the home of Jim and Kathi Keifer and son Ben of RR1, McAlisterville. This writer had the pleasure of going to their home several days later to take photos of the family's six-week-old German Shepherd female, Mystic, who had already stolen their family's hearts.

New members are welcome to join the club. Call (717) 436-8991 and ask for the Extension Office. Ask for Kathy who will be happy to give you more information.

Reuse

There are many ways to reuse the things we no longer need. It's very easy to donate clothes, toys and other things to community centers or social service agencies so that others can use them.

At school, you can help reduce the amount of lunchroom trash by REUSING your lunch containers. You can use the same paper or plastic bag over and over. Using a lunch box and resealable and reuseable plastic containers for your sandwich and chips is a better way to avoid waste. A thermos is a great way to carry a drink without having to throw anything away.

Many arts and crafts projects can use items that we might otherwise put in the trash. A glass jar or can is great for pencils, pens, paint brushes... You can decorate shopping bags and use them for book covers or wrapping paper. Used paper or magazines can turn into note pads, a collage, scrap paper or decoration for a box or a card.

Lebanon Selects Dairy Royalty

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Dairy Promotion Committee selected its 1994 slate of promotion royalty during a special event held Saturday evening at the Lebanon Vocational-Technical School, in Lebanon.

The event was designed around an ice cream social with entertainment provided by a musical lip syncing group. Outgoing promoters were recognized for their achievements, while the new promotion group was crowned.

Stacy Krall, daugther of Glen and Linda Krall, who operate a dairy farm in Cornwall, was selected dairy princess.

Krall has been an outstanding 4-H member in the county and has shown animals at the county fair and in other programs.

She replaces outgoing princess, Jennifer Bashore. Other outgoing royalty was Little Miss Jenny Maulfair, and alternate princess Karen Heilinger.

In addition to Krall, the 1994 Lebanon County Little Miss is Erin Williams, daughter of Dave and Christine Williams. Stephanie Buck, daughter of Harry and Annette Buck was selected at county dairy maid.

About 100 people attended the hour-long event and participated in the "Make Your Own Sundae" social.

Stephanie Singo To Crown Successor On June 25

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — For a young woman who seldom rubs shoulders with idleness, bustling Somerset County dairy princess, Stephanie Singo found her niche doing dairy promotions, but will surrender her crown — and her duties, to another industrious promoter on June 25.

It isn't that the energetic 17-year old doesn't have her weary moments, mind you, but she is simply endowed with an innate drive to achieve worthwhile purposes.

Stephanie says that among the first of her lessons as dairy princess was memorizing the local highway network.

"I learned my way around Somerset County real fast," she said.

Of course, her travels took her to area stores and malls, to the radio stations to record dairy promotion spots which ultimately revealed that she talks too fast and really needs to slow it down.

"Talking on the radio taught me to talk slower. Now my dad can understand me on the radio," she said, grinning.

Too, there were farm and non-farm appearances and special events, newspaper articles, and school promotions, which she says were so enjoyable because of the spontaneity of the youngsters.

"I liked going to the school and talking to the little kids because they always figured out the cow was a real person," she says about her bovine impersonating consort's identity being revealed.

Invariably, the responsibility of being an official dairy spokesperson for 12 successive months changes a girl.

"I took on a lot of responsibility," says Stephanie. "It taught me how to be flexible, independent and to be a communicator." She developed skills in talking with people she'd never met which boosted her confidence.

Despite her non-farm background, Stephanie's experience in the family feed business was a helpful preparation for dealing with a public generally uneducated about dairy farming and dairy products. Chatting with the farmers helped further.

"I knew about dairy when I tried out (for the dairy princess pageant), but I really learned more about dairy when I got out and talked to the farmers and heard their views," she said.

"High quality feed matters if a farmer wants high quality milk," says Stephanie, "and a farmer has to have good management or he won't get good milk production."

"I think the public should be more aware of the difference between real dairy products and the imitations," she says, explaining they should read a product's label to know what is in it. If the first ingredient listed isn't milk or skim milk, but rather oil or water, Stephanie says to beware because it's an imitation.

Persons in a local PTA were shocked, she says, when she demonstrated how easy it is to fake milk. Before them she combined water, a popular vegetable shortening and oil, then shook it. They were astonished when it looked exactly like the milk she had in a second jar.

Working at Singo Feeds, a family operated business in Somerset, helped Somerset County dairy princess, Stephanie Singo learn technical information about feeding dairy animals for top milk production. In turn, she passed the formation to the less-educated general public.

Mother, Brenda Singo, was equally surprised by the revelation. The powdered coffee creamers in the kitchen cupboards were dismissed into the garbage and replaced by a Half and Half dairy product for her aromatic cup of java.

Stephanie says her dairy promotion work has persuaded both friends and family to use real dairy products. Even little Andy, her three-year-old nephew now knows you look for that "Real Seal" in the supermarket before you buy it. And he says so immediately if it's missing.

At the Rockwood Area High School Stephanie is a cheerleader, majorette, band, and chorus member and in the Friends program. But membership in the Rockwood FFA Chapter gets the lion's share of her time.

Just named the Somerset County Outstanding FFA Student, Stephanie says she's running for state officer at the FFA state convention this month at Penn State.

Public Speaking competitions found her winning several times in her county and at regionals. Twice she was third at states.

Stephanie participated on the demonstration team, in parliamentary procedure, wildlife, interview, envirothon, and supervised agriculture experience.

Among the fond memories of the year just passed is the painfully-less fond one of a cracked tailbone, which curbed but didn't curtail, the active lifestyle of this tough little go-getter, the smallest girl on the cheering squad.

A new gymnasium was constructed at her high school, which had a super slippery floor. During a sports activity, Stephanie fell and the damage occurred. Two weeks later, she accompanied the cheering squad to a competition held at Busch Gardens. As the most petite cheerleader, she was necessary to cap some pyramid formation they were all counting on to look good in competition.

"I took along my heating pad, my Ben-Gay and my ice pack." She laughs, then adds, "Three weeks later, I fell again." Her doctor was wondering if his patient was forming a lasting habit.

The summer of 1993 found Stephanie facing an unending whirl of dairy promotions that pretty well consumed her time. "I thought, 'dairy princess is my life,'" she recalls, "I didn't see any of my friends." Though difficult, it was but a few weeks until they were together again.

Stephanie says that when she attends to college in the fall of 1995, she wants to devote all her time to studies. Her reason for delayed entry to the Delaware Valley College in Doylestown, is the hope of holding a state FFA office during the next year.

Robert Singo, Jr., Stephanie's dad, took over Singo Feeds in Somerset about five years ago. The business was begun by his father, Robert Sr., in 1955. The Singo family including Stephanie's brothers, Robert III and Jamie all work in the business.

Hearty Bacon Potato Chowder

8 slices bacon, cut into 1-inch pieces
2 cups cubed 1/2 inch new red potatoes
1 cup chopped onions
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 1/4 cup milk
10 3/4 ounce can condensed cream of chicken soup
8 ounce can whole kernel corn, drained
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon thyme leaves

In 3-quart saucepan, cook bacon over medium heat for five minutes; add potatoes and onions. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, until potatoes are tender (15-20 min). Add remaining ingredients. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, until heated through.

Dairy Recipe Extravaganza

BAKED ZITI

1 jar (48 ounces) spaghetti sauce
2 teaspoons dried Italian herb seasoning
3¼ cups ziti or mostaccioli pasta (about 12 ounces), cooked and drained
1 large egg
1 container (16 ounces) ricotta cheese
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
12 ounces mozzarella cheese, shredded (about 3 cups)
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
½ teaspoon salt

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly grease a 3-quart oblong baking dish. In a medium bowl, stir together spaghetti sauce and herb seasoning. Remove 2 cups and set aside. Stir remaining mixture into pasta. Place half of the pasta mixture in baking dish. Sprinkle 1 cup of the mozzarella cheese on top.

In a medium bowl, beat egg. Stir in ricotta cheese, parmesan cheese, parsley, and salt until blended. Spread in dish over mozzarella cheese. Top with remaining pasta. Sprinkle with 1 cup of the mozzarella. Spread remaining spaghetti sauce evenly to edges of dish, coating all pasta.

Bake 55 minutes or until very hot in center and edges are bubbly. Sprinkle with remaining 1 cup mozzarella cheese. Bake 3 to 5 minutes longer until cheese melts.

Even though my husband Rick and I live in town, we still maintain a small garden in our backyard. Hopefully, within the next few years, we'll be able to move to the country. For that's where our hearts really are. We have a 5-year-old daughter, Rachel, who is at that age where she just loves to help mommy in the kitchen (and with everything else, too). Rick and I really enjoy your newspaper.

CREAM OF BROCCOLI SOUP

1 large bunch fresh broccoli, chopped
¼ cup butter, melted
¼ cup flour
10-ounce can cream of chicken soup
2 cups half and half
3 cups cheddar cheese, shredded
Paprika
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook broccoli in water in saucepan until tender, drain. Blend melted butter and flour in large saucepan. Combine soup with enough water to measure 2 cups. Add to saucepan. Cook over medium heat until thickened and smooth, stirring constantly. Add half and half; reduce heat. Stir in cheese until melted. Add broccoli. Cook until heated through. Season with paprika, salt, and pepper to taste. Servings: 6.

My family loves the taste of this soup that I serve with a sandwich for a light lunch. My husband Craig and I have three children, Megean, Aaron, and Adam. Megean and Aaron like working with the calves, and Adam, well, he just likes drinking the milk.

My husband has been milking cows a little over 10 years. We have about 65 head. It's a beautiful place to raise a family because we are always together having fun and learning new things all the time

8 ounce package egg noodles
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon butter

½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup minced chives

My husband Albert and I are dairy farmers in southeast New York. We are milking about 30 cows, mostly Holsteins. We had a baby girl last December, who takes up a lot of time, so I'm always looking for quick main dishes.

LIME YOGURT SALAD

8½ ounces pear halves
2 packages (3 ounces each) lime flavor gelatin
2 cups boiling water
8 ounces vanilla flavored yogurt

Drain pears, reserving ½ cup syrup. Slice pears. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Measure 1 cup gelatin. Blend in yogurt and pour into 8-inch square pan. Chill until set but not firm. Add measured syrup to remaining gelatin and chill until slightly thickened. Arrange pear slices on gelatin-yogurt layer and top with clear gelatin. Chill until firm, about 3 hours. Cut into squares. Serves 9.

My mother has been making this salad for our family for many years. Since I now have my own family and live far from the family farm in Connecticut, making it reminds me of the great family dinners my mother made for us each evening after chores. As she was a dietitian before becoming a dairy farmer, she always prepared a balanced dinner and we would review the day together. We sat around the kitchen table and ate without the interruption of TV.

My two sons, Matthew and Brian, like to help in the kitchen.

8 ounces ricotta cheese
⅔ cup mozzarella cheese
⅓ cup parmesan cheese
2 cups sauce

This recipe is great when time is of a minimum. It is very filling.

GRAHAM CRACKER PUDDING

Mix together:
4 egg yolks
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar

Cook until thickened in the top of a double boiler or in a heavy pan over medium heat.

Remove from heat and add 1 teaspoon vanilla

While custard is cooking, dissolve 2 packages unflavored gelatin in ½ cup cold water.

Add to the custard mixture. Chill just to the consistency of gravy. Combine:

30 graham squares, crushed
6 tablespoons brown sugar
6 tablespoons butter, melted

Line the bottom of a 12x13x2-inch pan with half of the cracker mixture. When the pudding is cold, fold in:

4 egg whites, beaten stiff
2 cups whipping cream, whipped

Pour into cracker-lined pan and sprinkle the remaining cracker mixture on top and chill.

This recipe was given to me by my aunt 44 years ago. It was given to her by her mother 40 years before that, and it was given to my grandmother many years before that. It has always been one of the favorite desserts of my son, Dr. Kieren Knapp of Jacobus, and I always try to have it ready whenever he visits us in Iowa.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It is so easy to get so wrapped up in our own activities and forget about those people who can no longer take part in everyday functions. Sometimes we hear of a friend who is ill, but we neglect to visit or even send a card. We have good intentions, but somehow let other things interfere.

When I was 16 years old a classmate missed a lot of school but I did not pay much attention to the fact. Then one day I picked a bouquet of flowers and drove to her home. I was met on the porch by her mother who told me that she had just died but would have appreciated a visit earlier. I will always remember the crushed feeling that I had as I went home.

People like to be remembered. Mother's Day came and went without one card in the mailbox from any of our children. I felt a bit down — six children and no cards. But, the next day and the day after that I did get some cards.

My little blue book of birthdays and anniversaries is full and many dates are squeezed between others. When I opened the book to June, I felt a bit sad as many names of relatives listed there are no longer living.

Years ago my father died suddenly of a heart attack. He was standing in the kitchen watching a pot boil on the stove when he dropped over. Other folks suffer a long time and need our support. The Hospice organization does a lot for families with a bedridden patient. The former Lancaster County Extension agent for horticulture, Arnold Lueck, is an invalid and would certainly appreciate begin remembered.

Arnie, as many people know him, taught many 4-H members to judge potatoes at the Pa. Farm Show. He also worked with county farmers in many other fields.

Dairy Farmers, Pirates Team To Promote Dairy

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's dairy farmers are continuing their allegiance with the Pittsburgh Pirates, utilizing the National League team for added exposure and increased awareness of milk and dairy products. The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program will be a sponsor of the team's radio network and Pirate Shortstop Jay Bell will be an "official" milk spokesman.

"We enjoy the exposure that the Pirates bring to our program," says Harold Shaulis, Pennsylvania Dairy Board member from Somerset. "We have an excellent spokesman in Jay Bell and our tie-in with the Pirates is a natural combination."

Pennsylvania Dairy will be featured in all game broadcasts and the Pirates will also make special mentions during June Dairy Month. For his part, Bell will be the focus of advertising messages. His "Bad Dreams" about a day without milk and several new themes will be used for the 1994 season.

The tie-in between milk, the Pirates and baseball is natural, since so many families attend baseball games.

Along with the radio network, Pennsylvania's roadsides will be graced by Jay Bell's milk billboards. Dairy farmers message is simple — "Jay Drinks Milk and It Shows." Bell's recent Gold Glove and Roberto Clemente Awards indicate that in his case, drinking milk has really shown to be effective.

Pennsylvania Dairy's sponsorship continues throughout the entire baseball season. The billboards will be on display during the summer months throughout central Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is supported by over 4,000 dairy farmers in the state. Pennsylvania Dairy conducts generic dairy product promotion programs including advertising, nutrition education, and consumer events.

½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Topping:

Heavily butter 9x13-inch pan. Fill pan with bread slices within ½-inch of top. Set aside. In blender, mix eggs, milk, half and half, vanilla, nutmeg, cinnamon, and salt. Pour mixture over bread slices. Refrigerate, covered overnight. Make topping. Set aside until time to bake toast. Spread topping over toast. Very delicious and handy to make for breakfast. Also goes good as dessert served with fruit.

My husband Merv and I with our four children, Jason, Ann Marlene, Anthony, and Susan Marie (ages 4 months to 7 years) live in Juniata County. We are surrounded by beautiful nature. Lots of deer, wild turkey, and a pond that has catfish, bass, and bluegills. Fishing is a lot of fun. Also a number of different birds that come to our feeder. The changing seasons sure makes lovely scenery.

We operate a 127,000 layer chicken house and farm 125 acres of corn, soybeans, and alfalfa. We gather eggs once a day from 5:30 a.m. to 9:30 or 10:00 a.m. My husband also has a seed dealership. I sew square and folded star potholders, plus being a homemaker, which is a full-time job.

I would enjoy having more breakfast recipes as we have plenty of eggs to use.

QUICK FAMILY COBBLER

1 cup sugar
½ cup butter
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 quart fruit, sweetened

Cream sugar and butter, add egg. Sift flour and baking powder together. Add milk and flour mixture. Mix well. Put fruit in pan, cover with batter. Bake 30 minutes at 375 degrees. Serve warm. Cherries, raspberries, peaches, apples, or blackberries may be used.

I obtained this recipe from a lady I used to work for. I changed it a bit and I like it better. It is simple and very delicious! I often put some raisins and nuts over the fruit before adding the batter. If I make peach, I add a little mace to the peaches. This is one of our favorite recipes.

I am the mother of four children and eight stepchildren. We live on a mountain farm in western Pennsylvania. I spend a lot of time cooking and preparing food. Homemade butter is a necessity in our family.

OLIVIA'S FLAN

Topping:
2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup granulated sugar

Heat water, vanilla, and sugar in heavy skillet, stirring until mixture comes to a boil. Stop stirring and brush down the sugar crystals that accumulate on the sides of the pan with moistened pastry brush. Allow mixture to boil, undisturbed, until it turns a rich amber color. Immediately remove pan from heat, then scrape caramel into a 9-inch round cake pan, moving pan to assure complete coverage of the bottom of the pan.

Filling:
3 eggs
3 egg yolks
¾ cup granulated sugar
13½ ounces can evaporated milk
1 cup whole milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Beat egg yolks and eggs in a bowl. Add sugar, and heat for one minute, then beat in remaining ingredients until combined. Pour into prepared cake pan and cover with aluminum foil. Place pan in a larger pan filled with water until it comes up halfway on the sides of the cake pan. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour or until custard is set. Cool at room temperature for ½ hour, then cool in refrigerator. To serve, run a table knife around the edges and turn out onto a serving plate, if desired. Serves 6-8.

Families are still the greatest and are a God-given institution. I am thankful to live in America, where we have plenty of food to eat.

God has blessed us with another spring, with all the beauty of nature to enjoy. This reaffirms our faith after a long, hard, cold, icy winter.

Three members of our family were involved in a car wreck last June 25. One, a 5-year-old grandson, was airlifted to Johns Hopkins Hospital Childrens' Center for a 23-day stay. He spent six weeks in a partial body cast because of broken vertebrae in his lower back. He had eight hours of surgery to remove 28 inches of damaged intestine. He has recovered completely, thank God. A daughter was involved in a three-car accident that caused another lady to be airlifted to a Baltimore hospital in September. She has made a partial recovery. In November, I hit a deer with my car. It scared me witless, but I wasn't hurt. The car has been repaired.

Our lives are still in God's hands. He continues to watch over us and we can sleep peacefully at night.

I still enjoy all the good recipes!

Check seasonings and turn into buttered casserole. Spread slightly crushed onions over top and bake uncovered at 325 degrees for about 30 minutes until puffy and golden.

May be prepared the day before only adding crushed onions before putting in oven.

We are dairy farmers in E. Hempfield Township with about 65 Holstein cows. Our children, Denae, Danette (twins, age 7) and Derek (age 5) consider it very special to be living on a farm. Being among the minority, their friends tell them, "You're lucky." My husband Darrel and I were blessed to be raised on the farm and the values we were taught there have come to mean a great deal to us. We are grateful our children can be given the same opportunity.

I especially like this casserole because I can prepare it ahead of time and my family would eat it every meal.

We have operated a dairy farm in Warren County for sometime. Last September we sold our dairy cows and now have beef. My husband has a machine shop on the farm, where he makes and fixes parts for many farmers in this area.

I sometimes miss the dairy cows, but I am glad we still have a part in farming by helping other farmers keep their equipment going.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

In response to readers' questions, this column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for the answers. In the past, many readers sent non-cooking requests to Cook's Question Corner, a cooking column on page B 8.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. The concept is the same: When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — A. Nolt of New Holland would like to know the words to the complete poem that was recited in the 1920s when her father-in-law went to school. The poem contains these lines. The carpenter's house is falling down. The preacher's kids are the worse in town.... Since this request appeared, Theresa Litecky, Eastampton, N.J., and several others have written to say they remember parts of this poem and can hardly wait to see the complete poem. Any readers who remember the complete poem, please send it immediately.

QUESTION — Marie Lorah, Box 299 R.D. 3, Tamaqua, Pa. 18252, is looking for water glasses with pictures of owls on them

QUESTION — Romaine B Answell, Sumerdale, would like to know who manufactured the Webalco electric skillet.

QUESTION — A reader would like to know how to keep bees away when holding outdoor picnics.

QUESTION — Barbara Davis, Sewell, N.J., would like to know where to purchase the old Parker Brothers card game called "Touring."

QUESTION — Dawn Lesher, Pitman, would like to know how to discourage birds from building nests in hanging basket plants

QUESTION — Beverly Budnick, Curehville, Md., asks for an explanation of the saying: A needle shall not pierce fabric on Ascension Day

QUESTION — Donald Gayman, Chambersburg, has an Equi-Flow Dehydrator with plastic trays. Food items are sticking, especially pears and tomatoes. Any suggestions as to what she can do to make the dried food fall easily from the trays after the food is dried? Also, does anyone have a new address for the company?

QUESTION — A York County reader would like to know how to clean aluminum storm doors or enclosures that are becoming pitted.

ANSWER — Judi Spurling of Limerick wanted to know where to purchase a sturdy quality bent willow or twig settee for use in an outside country flower garden. Thanks to Jackie Dilworth, Oxford, who said it can be purchased through the catalogue, Gardeners Eden, P.O. Box 7307, San Francisco, CA 94120-7307.

ANSWER — G. Depew, Mifflintown, wanted to know where to buy signs to erect along the highway to alert motorists of tractors and farm machinery crossing the highway. Thanks to Jay King, Pine Grove, who writes that the signs can be purchased from Gempler's, P.O. Box 270, 211 Blue Mounds Rd., Mt. Horeb, WI 53572.

ANSWER — Marie Loy of Pine Grove wanted to know how to keep rabbits from eating garden plants. Also, voles have eaten all the tulip bulbs in her garden. Thanks to Jackie Dilworth, Oxford, who writes that thorny pieces of rose or raspberry prunings should be placed over young shoots and around plants. Rabbits do not like to step on these clippings and will forage elsewhere. Another reader asks the barber for hair clippings to place in the garden. Rabbits avoid areas where human hair is placed according to several people.

To keep tulips or other bulbs from moles and voles, plant bulbs in wire cages in the ground.

Farm Women Societies

York Society 11

The Youth Society of Farm Women Group No. 11 met at the home of Naomi Bupp with 18 members and two visitors present.

The meeting opened with scripture, prayer and singing. The roll call response was — "What did you plant first in your garden?"

The secretary reported that 10 members attended Spring Rally and asked for comments. All reported it was a very good day and the program was excellent and enjoyable.

Committee reports were given. Members will entertain Group #2 on June 21 at the Hametown Church social room. Members will be entertained on June 14 at the Lutheran Church Social Room at Roundtown.

The youth program was presented by Elizabeth Newlin, a 4-H goat club member from East Berlin. The family raise seven kinds of goats on their farm and sells bottled goat milk. She explained the value of raising and tending goats and shared a cup of goat milk with our members. Her grandmother Shirley Christman was a guest also.

The society accepted two new members into the society. They are Barbara Groth and Edith Delp.

The hostess served refreshments including cheese pie with fresh strawberries.

First Annual FFA Conservation Field Day

The first annual West Snyder FFA Conservation Field Day was held by the seventh grade junior high FFA members with the assistance of six senior high FFA members.

The FFA traveled to Beaver Adams and West Beaver Elementary Schools for National Arbor Day on April 29 to conduct this program.

The senior high FFA members who participated were Elizabeth Hollenbach, who gave the welcome, and Steve Boop, John Walter, Ben Boonie, Jeremy Hackenberg, Jenny Zerby and Glendon Carper.

The junior high members planned different environmental activities for each grade. Groups of six junior high FFA members and one senior high FFA member gave half-day presentations to each grade level. Chaired by Jennifer Balantcz and Beth Fisher, the kindergarten and first grade activities included planting seeds, making a craft flower, and a coloring activity. In second grade, Chairman Kristen Havice arranged a presentation on the importance of water, played Water Word Bingo, and read a story on how to keep the water clean. Janell Bobb, chairman of the third grade group, discussed wildlife and showed a video about the recovery and release of wildlife. They aslo colored a poster on Pennsylvania wildlife.

In fourth grade, Laura Looney chaired activities, which included a video entitled "Those Record Breaking Animals," and a coloring contest on Pennsylvania Wildlife. Steven Bernardi, wildlife conservation officer for Snyder and Union counties, presented a program on rabies for the fifth graders.

This grade level was chaired by Jennifer Kuhns. They also completed a poster contest. Under the chairmanship of Brad Hackenberg and Doug Boop, all sixth graders constructed a bluebird house which was precut by the vocational agriculture wildlife class. The bird houses were given to each sixth grader as they completed the project. Craig Bingman from the Snyder County Conservation District Office assisted with the judging of several contests. The conservation district donated a pack of wildflower seeds and a magnet for each elementary school student.

Apply For Liquid Fuels Tax Refunds

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State officials are urging farmers to apply for refunds on taxes paid on liquid fuels that were purchased for use in agricultural production.

Specifically, the upcoming refund is for taxes paid on fuel purchased anytime from July 1, 1993 to June 30 1994.

While farmers pay the 12-cents per gallon when purchasing the fuel, even though they are exempt for paying the tax, they have to apply and request that the money be returned.

And though records are necessary, and should be available through the fuel dealer, in order to make the claim, the process is not difficult.

But according to a news release from the state Treasury Department, not many are asking for their money back. According to Pennsylvania Treasurer Catherine Baker Knoll, "... about 40,000 farmers did not even apply for refunds. Please take the time to fill out the ... claim form. It takes only a couple minutes, but it could mean money in your pocket."

That 40,000 farmers who did not submit is out of the 51,000 estimate farmers in Pennsylvania, all of whom may have used liquid fuels for some reason in agricultural production.

From a straight statistical analysis, that means only about 20 percent of those potentially due refunds are actually making a request, according to the state data.

Last year those who applied received an average refund of $183.

Farmers who have in the past registered a claim for the liquid fuels tax refund with the Treasury Department Board of Finance and Revenue are to automatically receive a notice and an application for this year's refund.

According to Lynne Vergot, supervisor with the Board of Finance and Revenue, those notices are to be mailed June 17.

Others have to seek out the application, but it only takes a phone call or a letter, according to the news releases.

Those with questions or wishing to register for the refund program should call the Board of Finance and Revenue at (717) 787-6534, or write to the board at: Room 500C, Finance Building, Harrisburg, 17120.

Ford Offers 12X12 DualPower Transmission

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new Ford DualPower™ 12x12 transmission from Ford New Holland for 66 to 90 hp PowerStar™ tractors offers the convenience of on-the-go shifting in an economical package that's ideal for tillage work, according to Ford New Holland product managers Dave Dell and John Hundley.

The new transmission is available for Models 5640, 6640, 7740, and 7840 tractors. It gives operators an 18 percent speed decrease with a 22 percent torque boost for each of the 12 speed rations.

In effect, DualPower™ transmissions give the tractors 24 speed rations. A button on the main shift lever lets operators select speed range without clutching for low driver effort and uninterrupted work. The low-effort, ergonomically positioned controls reduce operator fatigue so long days seem shorter.

DualPower™ 12x12 transmissions for 66 to 90 hp PowerStar™ Ford tractors from Ford New Holland provide on-the-go shifting without clutching. With a total of 24 ratios, DualPower™ gives tractors a 22 percent torque boost in each of 12 speed ratios.

New Bedding Chopper Features Unique Rotor Blades

POUND, Wis. — The new Patz Model 9427 chopper introduces a one-piece, four-point, double-edge rotor blade designed to chop tough material such as newspaper as well as straw and hay.

The reversible blades are through-hardened, bevelled and serrated for more-effective chopping. The 3/16-inch-thick steel blade provides extra strength. There are no bolts, no rivets, and no welds on the blade, so snagging and wrapping of material is reduced greatly. These blades can be reversed or replaced quickly and easily.

The standard-cut rotor has 20 four-point rotor blades. A long-cut rotor is available with 11 four-point rotor blades.

Both rotor shaft bearings are mounted outside the tub to minimize contamination as well as allow easy lubricating and servicing.

To get a brochure or to examine one of these new-dimension choppers, contact a Patz dealer or Patz Sales, Inc., Pound, WI 54161-0007, (414) 897-2251.

The new Patz bedding chopper offers several unique features for extra benefits.

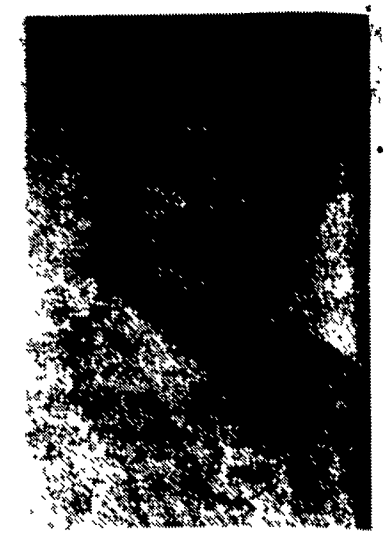
Julie Sauber



Jill Marti

3 Join ABS

DEFOREST, Wis. — American Breeders Service (ABS) has recently announced the addition of three personnel.

Julie Sauber has recently joined as communications intern. In this position, Sauber will work in the communications department, providing assistance in advertising and promotional display development, in addition to helping with ABS publications and news releases. Sauber will also assist in coordinating herd and facility tours and work with developing audio-visual materials.

Sauber is pursuing an animal science degree with a minor in journalism from the University of Wisconsin-River Falls. She grew up on a dairy farm in Lakeville, Minn.

Jill Marti has been named to the communications department as tour specialist. Marti serves as the tour coordinator for groups wishing to view ABS progeny in herds thorughout the Midwest and eastern United States. In this capacity, she locates and inspects ABS sired cattle for tour possibilities. Marti also assists with other ABS promotional efforts.

A recent graduate of the University of Minnesota, Marti received a bachelor of science degree in animal and plant systems with an emphasis in dairy production.

ABS recently hired Teresa Lappley as the dairy contract coordinator. In this position, Lappley's responsibilities include coordinating, processing, and recording dairy contracts. Lappley updates the computer database with contract status information and serves as a computer and information support person to the sire acquisition team. Lappley assists with special projects and training programs.

Lappley, a native of Evansville, Wis., brings extensive computer processing experience to ABS. Prior to joining ABS, she spent five years at Evansville Veterinary Service, where she maintained the dairy herd management database and provided administrative support. During her employment at Aguilar and Associates, Inc., Verona, Wis., Lappley assisted in developing customized training courses, promotional activities, and worked in computer graphics.

Bluegrass Results Available

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Quality ratings of Kentucky Bluegrass cultivars are available for 1992-1993 trials conducted at Penn State University.

The results are of interest to turf grass managers at golf courses and sod farms.

Copies of the reports are available from local county extension offices including Huntingdon (814) 643-1660 and Blair (814) 695-5541, Ext. 210.

In September 1990, 126 Kentucky Bluegrass varieties were established at the Joseph Valentine Turf grass Research Center in University Park. Evaluation criteria include quality, disease resistance, color, density, greenup and seedhead production.

Fight Compaction With Ripper

BRILLION, Wis. — Breaking up hardpan and compaction as deep as 20 inches is a snap with the new Compaction Commander from Brillion Iron Works.

"Like our popular Landcommander™, the Compaction Commander is the ideal tool for spring or fall tillage," said Michael Irish, Brillion's marketing manager. "It features the same auto-reset shanks for nonstop, uniform, deep tillage. Plus, the Compaction Commander has 39 inches of underframe clearance, which lets you tackle heavy residue with ease."

The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance, Irish said. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil, reducing compaction for better root growth.

Comply Receives EUP For Pears

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Comply insect growth regulator received EPA approval for an Experimental Use Permit (EUP) for pears.

Ciba Crop Protection's EUP allows Comply to be used this season in post bloom applications for control of calling moth, leafrollers, leafminers, pear psylla, and other pests.

Comply is a new type of material for insect control. It disrupts the natural growth of the target pest. After coming in contact with Comply, insects do not proceed to the next growth stage and, as a result, the past population is reduced or eliminated.

Comply is packaged in a sealed water soluble pouch that dissolves in the tank eliminating container disposal.

Best Values in New Equipment

We hear you.

We know that making hay is a tough business. It takes a healthy share of your precious time, and leaves no room for equipment failure.

So when you told us you needed mower conditioners that would fit in and stand up to your long, relentless work schedules, we heard you.

When you said you wanted a cutting width that was tailor-fitted to the size of your operation, and a choice of roll configurations, we heard you.

And when you asked that the convenience of a center-pivot hitch be made available on a wider range of models, we heard you.

Our response? The broadest line of mower conditioners we've ever offered. With nine models, ranging from 7 ft. 3 in. to 16 ft. in. cutting width — including two high-performance disc mower conditioners with new levels of durability for wet fields, dense hay or tangled grass crops.

Our seven conventional models feature uniform-motion sickle drives that not only provide a clean, high-speed cut, but also reduce the forces on knife-drive components for built-in dependability.

And with a center-pivot hitch now available on both disc and conventional models, the flexibility to work from either side of the tractor is just a hydraulic lever away.

The Case International line of mower conditioners. They take a tough job and cut it down to size. See them at your Case IH dealer today. And ask about Total Product Support — our commitment to the service and parts that turn a sale into a true partnership.

down to size. See them at your Case IH dealer today. And ask about Total Product Support — our commitment to the service and parts that turn a sale into a true partnership.

For years, you've told us that you wanted more choices in your round-baler decision. Why, you asked, does a line of round balers have to be limited in size or type?

We heard you. And when you said that a wider range of bale sizes would help you better meet your herd-feeding, handling and storage, or custom-baling requirements, we responded. You'll find Case International round balers that produce bales ranging from 550 lbs. all the way up to 2,200 lbs.

We also heard from those that prefer the variable-chamber design because it provides uniform bale density, choice of bale diameter and feeding flexibility. We heard from others who voted for a fixed-chamber machine because of its mechanical simplicity, ease of operation and ability to handle difficult-to-bale crops like short straw and grasses. And we responded: Our broad line-up includes both designs — plus a long list of performance and operating convenience features and options, including mesh wrap.

And finally, we heard your request for time-saving technology in round baling. We responded with the 8465 AUTOMATIC. At the touch of a button, this state-of-the-art machine wraps the bale, ejects it, and starts you on your way to the next big 2,200 lb. bale.

The Case International line of round balers. Think of it as freedom of choice, available from your Case IH dealer today. And, like all Case International products, these round balers come with Total Product Support — our commitment to the service and parts that turn a sale into a true partnership.

Deere Releases Tractor Safety Announcements

MOLINE, Ill. — Deere & Company has produced and released three 30-second public service announcements (PSAs) on tractor safety as part of its safety education efforts. The announcements were distributed via satellite to more than 650 television stations throughout the U.S. during March.

"Accidents involving farm tractors of all sizes and brands claimed over 300 lives in 1992 according to National Safety Council estimates," said Al Higley, spokesman for Deere & Company. "These public service announcements represent one approach among many that John Deere is using to remind farmers and their families to operate tractors safely at all times. The goal of this and other efforts is to help reduce the number of tractor accidents and fatalities rural America experiences each year."

These PSAs address three of the most common types of accidents involving farm tractors: runovers, overturns, and pto (power takeoff) driveline entanglements. Although John Deere tractors are shown in the announcements, the information on safe operation is appropriate for all tractor brands.

One of the PSA's focuses on resisting the temptation to let children (or anyone else) ride along on a tractor designed for only one person — the operator. A rider who falls from a moving tractor could experience a serious injury, or worse.

A second announcement warns farmers about the danger of attempting to bypass the normal procedure for starting a tractor. Bypass starting by shorting across electrical connections on the starter while standing on the ground is a dangerous practice. It puts operators in a position where they could be run over if the tractor is left in gear, starts, and moves.

The third PSA provides several safety reminders for tractor owners and operators. These safety messages include equipping older tractors with a ROPS (rollover protective structure) to help protect the operator should a rollover occur, wearing a seat belt with a ROPS-equipped tractor, keeping all pto and driveline guards in place and in good condition, and using proper lights, reflectors, and a slow-moving vehicle (SMV) emblem when traveling on roads.

More information about John Deere safety materials is available by writing Deere & Company, John Deere Road, Moline, IL 61265.

LAYER MANURE: A VALUABLE PRODUCT

Eric S. Lorenz, M.S.
Ag Economics Candidate
Research Assistant
Dept. Of
Poultry Science

In the preceding 20 years, there has been a worldwide awakening to the problem of pollution of the environment (air, water, soil) and its effects on human health and other forms of life.

Much of this concern has stemmed from the amount of manure produced by the increased number of animals in confinement.

This is certainly true in the poultry industry. The trend is away from small flocks and toward the concentration of poultry into houses containing more than 100,000 laying hens.

The economy of size has enabled producers to take advantage of labor-saving devices for feeding and watering, technological innovations for egg collection and processing, discounts associated with bulk feed purchases, and other production cost-saving practices.

However, one limitation is the utilization of manure from this large concentration of birds.

The public and environmentalists have voiced the following major concerns pertaining to pollution associated with farm animals excreta:

- Nitrates — natural processes break down manure and allow nitrates to disperse into surface and ground water.
- Inorganic elements — excessive application of manure to crop land tends to accumulate these elements (P, K, Ca, etc.) in the soil that can be toxic to plants and detrimental to soil structure.
- Oxygen demand — organic material (runoff) has a high oxygen demand that will decrease obtainable oxygen to fish and other aquatic life.
- Odors, dust and insects — farms located near centers of population are having a growing number of complaints filed against them because of these nuisances.

Economic Viewpoint

Economists classify these pollutants as externalities (an effect of one economic agent on another that is not taken into account by normal market behavior). In simple terms, the excess application of manure to land by farmers imposes a cost (the cleanup) on society.

Today, this cost is not normally determined as a production cost to the poultry producer. Thus, the input (pollution) is considered a free factor of production and thus its use is maximized. Therefore, the benefits accrue to the firm while the cost is passed to society.

One traditional solution to an externality is a governmental tax on the good generating the problem. This is illustrated conceptually in Figure 1.

The normal workings of the market will cause output "Y" to be produced. Taxing of the good (eggs) will reduce the demand curve facing the firm from "Demand" to "Demand'". This will shift the profit-maximizing level of egg output from "Y" to "Y'", which is also the level of output that is socially optimal.

By taxing eggs, the effective demand for the product has been reduced; individuals who use eggs are now forced to pay for the damage that egg production creates.

Two concerns with this solution are, first, calculating the precise tax to be imposed directly on the good. Second, the price elasticity of demand for eggs is -.23, which is inelastic (the quantity demanded changes relatively little compared to the change in price). Combined, these two factors make it difficult to obtain the exact desired effect of pollution abatement.

An alternative course is to internalize the externality. Instead of the cost of pollution cleanup being passed to society, the cost is internalized as a production cost to the egg producer. This will increase the price of the input manure disposal. The change in the input price will cause a shift in the firm's cost curves. In effect, the firm will now pay the full social marginal cost ("MC social") of egg production. In other words, the firm manger will now take the marginal cost curve for production to be MC social and would produce where marginal revenue ("Demand") = MC social, which is required for efficiency.

Solutions

There are numerous exotic techniques to utilize layer manure (ensiling for ruminant feed, incineration and methane digestion for electricity generation), although more realistic approaches to minimize the cost of manure utilization are:

1. Application to agriculture land as fertilizer at site of production
2. Export as fertilizer to agricultural land in neighboring areas.

Option 1: Application to agricultural land as fertilizer.

Most layer operations remove the manure regularly as a matter of animal health. After they move out a flock of hens, they clean the layer house. Other producers will remove the manure several times during the laying cycle. In either case, this results in an enormous pile of manure (around 1,600 tons of "as-is" manure/100,000 hens/year).

Most operations have solved the problem of disposal by spreading the manure on available land. As mentioned previously, excess manure applications can cause numerous pollution problems. In addition, because of the potential for environmental damage, some states limit the rate of manure application per acre of land.

For example, Pennsylvania House Bill Number 100 states that "concentrated animal operations" will be required to develop and maintain a nutrient management plan. Concentrated animal operations have an animal density of two or more animal units per acre on an annual basis. An animal unit is 1,000 pounds of live weight. The table below illustrates the outcome of this law on an average size flock of 100,000 hens.

AEU = Animal Equivalent Units
3.28 lb. mean weight x 100,000 = 328,000 lb. live at 2 AEU per acre = 164 acres required.
Manure and nutrient production from such a size flock would be:

AS IS*		LBS/ACRE (WITH 164 ACRES)
Manure	3,200,000 lbs (1600 tons)	19,512 (9.8 tons)
total N	57,600 lb.	351
P205	89,600 lb.	546
K20	51,200 lb.	312

* Based on 77 samples.
This is above agronomist's recommendations of 7 tons/acre.

For Example:
150 bushel corn silage requires
N = 200 lb/acre

Thus a location 50 miles from the source will cost:
$0x17 tons = $0.00
$0.50/ton to load 17 tons = $8.50
$1.30 x 100 miles = $130.00
Total Cost = $138.50/truck load or $8.15/ton

Therefore, the pollution dilemma still exists under these guidelines with this manure nutrient analysis. This suggests there is not only a manure quantity problem but also a quality consideration (nutrient concentration).

An additional issue is that the average farm with 100,000 layers may only have an average of 50 acres of tillable land. Therefore, another site must be located for disposal of poultry manure. If 50 acres are available and 164 acres are required, then an additional 114 acres must be obtained. Hence, the producer must decide whether to buy or rent land, sell the excess manure, or reduce production.

For simplicity sake, we will assume the most cost effective way is to sell the excess manure to another area (option 2).

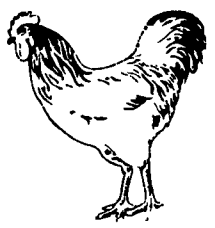
Option 2: Export as fertilizer to agricultural land in neighboring areas.

Because of the bulkiness and the potentially high level of moisture (60 percent) of layer manure, the major cost for the buyer is transportation. However, there are custom applicators who will pick up, transport, and apply the manure. These custom applicators have spreader-type trucks that can haul and apply approximately 17 tons "as is" of layer manure per load. As one can surmise, as distance from the source increases, the total cost to the buyer increases (Figure 2).

"AS IS" 60.4% MOISTURE

Nutrient	%	lb./ton	price/ton cents	dollars
N	1.8	36	22.5	8.10
P205	2.8	56	23.0	12.88
K20	1.6	32	14.0	4.48
			Value	$25.46/ton

Total manure per 100,000 hens = 1600.00 ton annual x 25.46 value



Only two possible solutions have been addressed to the manure utilization issue. There are others as mentioned previously. One intriguing approach is, instead of treating the effect, why not examine the cause of the externality? Is it possible to modify the genetics of the bird to increase nutrient absorption? Can the nutrient makeup of the diet be altered to decrease the amount of nutrients in the feces? More research is needed to study other feasible and economical answers.

Trucking cost =
$cost/ton (table 1 x 17 ton/load.
Value "as is" =
$25.46/ton x 17 ton/load = $432.82.

Based on the current trucking cost and estimate of manure fertilizer value, it can be concluded that 163 miles is the maximum range for custom application (Figure 3).

(Turn to Page C11)

For example, if the trucking distance is 50 miles, then the trucking cost is $8.15/ton and the value from the fertilizer is $25.46, resulting in a gain of $17.31/ton.

At distances greater than 163 miles, the trucking cost eliminates the benefits of using poultry manure fertilizer. Therefore, as shown by Figure 3, exporting manure for distances of 163 miles or less is profitable.

On the surface, exporting manure is an economically feasible solution with benefits to all (producer, applicator, buyer, society). Nevertheless, there are other concerns. For instance, is there a market for poultry manure? Are sufficient commercial applicators available? Also, what is the effect on the commercial fertilizer market? And, finally, would the increase in demand for custom application of poultry manure have a detrimental effect on the commercial fertilizer industry?

Summary

Nutrient management legislation has decreed that the benefits to society are greater than the cost imposed on firms for pollution control. The imposed cost is now incorporated as part of the firm's production function. The dual approach to cost minimization is for the firm to maximize output for a given expenditure of total cost.

One means to cost minimization is for efficient use of the resource. Layer manure, previously thought of as a "waste," must now be considered a resource. Taken one step farther, it can also be classified as a by-product that can have significant economic value as a plant nutrient.

$0/ton purchase price of manure 17 tons/load$0.50/ton for producer to load truck $1.30/mile round trip.

Thus, a location 50 miles from the source will cost: 10C$0 x 17 tons = $0.00 10C$0.50/ton to load 17 tons = $8.50 9C$1.30 x 100 miles = $130.00 10CTotal Cost = $138.50/truck load or $8.15/ton

For correct analysis, a value, for the nutrient characteristics of layer manure as a fertilizer, must be determined. This is approximated by using commercial bulk fertilizer prices.

Show Celebrates 35th

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The East Coast Championships and Eastern Arabian Horse Show celebrates its 35th year in style on August 5-7 at the Quentin Riding Club (QRC) south of Lebanon.

The final direct qualifier for U.S. Nationals will for the first time include East Coast championship classes for adult amateur owner halter handler for purebred mares, stallions and geldings, and East Coast championship country English pleasure JOTR.

For the Eastern show, which precedes the ECC, classes have been added, which include AOTR working hunter division, western horsemanship JTR, three reining classes with more than $1,000 in prize money, the gelding maturity, and more than $2,000 in door prizes to be given to the exhibitors just for being at the show.

In 1993, the Eastern Show raised more than $1,200 for The Four Diamonds Fund at the Hershey Medical Center. For 1994, the show will try to top that figure with a silent bid auction featuring original art, a raffle with a filled tack trunk, Ariat Boots, a hand painted denim jacket, and much more.

Delmarva Poultry Exports Grow

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Exporting is becoming more important for Delmarva's poultry industry, according to new figures released by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the trade association for the Delmarva Peninsula's nearly $1.3- billion-a- year poultry industry.

A recent DPI survey indicated that 3.2 percent of the poultry produced on Delmarva was exported. This equates to nearly 2,100 containers or 90 million pounds of product. This compares to 1,200 containers and 60 million pounds in 1992.

Put into perspective, exports from Delmarva last year, based on pounds of product, increased by 50 percent compared to the previous year. The projection for 1994 indicates that exports this year will be up about 15 percent compared to last year. Put another way, exports created a need for about 240 chicken houses, 100 growers, and about 600 poultry company employees.

The destinations for Delmarva-produced products were China, Hong Kong, Singapore, Russia, Poland, Germany, France, England, Finland, Romania, Albania, Moldova, Switzerland, Peru, and Jamaica. The shipments were exported through the ports of Baltimore, Md; Norfolk, Va; New York, N.Y.; Charleston, S.C.; Gulfport, Miss.; Pascagoula, Miss.; Philadelphia, Pa; Savannah, Ga.; and ports in Florida.

Export products included whole birds, wings, legs, leg quarters, paws, gizzards, livers, hearts, drumsticks, thighs, backs, and chicken hot dogs.

The destinations, ports of embarkation, and the product mix are similar to those indicated in 1992 and 1993 DPI export surveys, though there were more destinations listed this year.

Nationally, poultry exports continue to grow. Figures from the United States Department of Agriculture for 1993 show the value of broiler-meat exports was nearly 798 million dollars, up 18 percent from the year earlier. In 1993, the volume of exports grew a phenomenal 32 percent, reaching almost 916,000 metric tons.

Most of the growth in U.S. exports can be attributed to a strong increase in sales to the former Soviet Union, Eastern Europe, and the Middle East. Sales to Asian nations, the primary destination for Delmarva products, continued strong last year, with 41 percent of U.S. broiler-meat exports going there.

One consumer benefit from increased exports has occurred. While American consumers prefer white meat, overseas' customers prefer chicken's dark meat. Thanks to increased exports, American consumers are seeing more affordable bone-in chicken breasts, boneless/skinless breasts, and similar products. This has resulted from greatly expanded exports of dark meat and greatly expanded boneless production. Since more chickens need to be cut up to meet rising export demand, more breast meat is provided for the domestic market and prices are more affordable.

"IT IS TIME TO ONCE AGAIN GET SERIOUS ABOUT STORING YOUR VALUABLE FEEDS!!!"

The recent "innovations" and temporary methods of storing your grains and forages are just not protecting your feeds like they should, nor are they really efficient.

Research and practical experience has shown that "the tower silo has never been equalled in its ability to protect your forage quality." And remember..." on most dairy farms, forage quality is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Contact us soon to be sure you get on our schedule to have your poured concrete tower silo constructed in time!

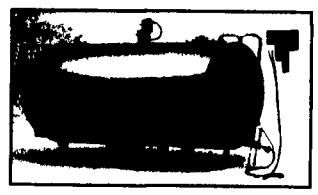
Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller® milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

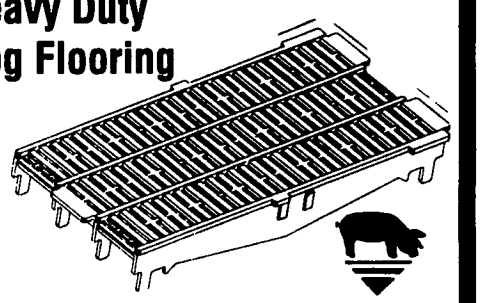
Polygrate ™

Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.
◆ POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?
◆ More piglets survive until weaning
◆ Less splay/spraddle leg problems
◆ Heavier piglets at weaning
◆ Better conditioned sows at weaning

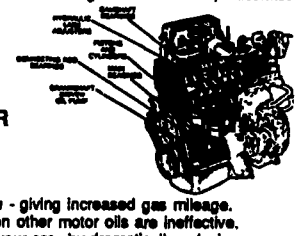
Efficiency Is Our Newest Resource

IXL Technology Is New, Different & Better

IXL is the result of years of research and development in Chemistry and Metallurgy.
IXL is a non-particulate chemical that goes beyond the typical hydrodynamic principle on which most lubricants are based IXL does NOT contain graphite, moly or TFE. It is nonflammable, biodegradable and nontoxic. Unique molecular bonding increases the density of the metal surface making it harder and smoother, as OPPOSED to coating the surface with particulates (e.g. PTFE) suspended in a high-viscosity oil

CRITICAL LUBRICATION POINTS WHERE METAL-TO-METAL CONTACT CAN OCCUR



ENGINE:
IXL effectively eliminates Friction - giving increased gas mileage.
- Protects during cold starts when other motor oils are ineffective.
- Increases the drive-train life of your car - by dramatically reducing wear and tear on the moving components.
- Environmentally friendly.

AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION:
IXL protects seals. Reduces Friction in bearings and gears resulting in extended transmission life.

MANUAL TRANSMISSION:
IXL reduces Friction between gears and synchronizers resulting in smoother operating, better shifting with overall protection.

POWER STEERING:
IXL reduces Friction in pump, gearbox and rack. Resulting in smoother operating with less energy expired. Also protects rack and pinion from developing hard spots.

REAR END & DIFFERENTIAL:
By introducing IXL to the Rear End and Differential you protect the ring and pinion plus all gears and bearings that normally fail due to wear. One also has the addition of fuel economy because less Friction means greater gas mileage.

AIR-CONDITIONING:
By adding 1 ounce of IXL to the air-conditioning unit results in smoother operating, less energy expired and eliminates noise and chattering.

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back.

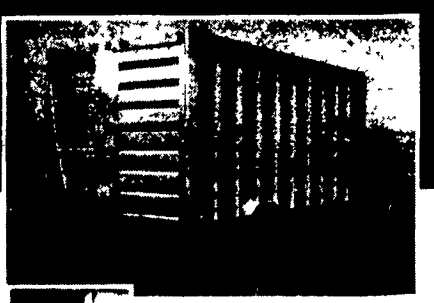
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Dairy Farms: Environmental Issues, Considerations

ROBERT E. GRAVES
Professor Ag. Engineering

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — An action taken today on a dairy farm can have an adverse environmental impact many miles away or many years in the future.

Larger dairy farms and increasing public awareness require that environmental consequences be considered in the dairy manager's decision making process.

Those whose income depends on prosperous dairy farms must also be aware of the environmental impact of their advice or product.

Environmental protection is more complicated than considering where or when manure is applied to crop or pasture land. Dairy farms can impact surface and ground water, be a source of noise, odor, dust, and flies, track mud and manure on highways, and obstruct the skyline.

Large modern buildings may represent the latest in dairy technology yet be considered a blight on the pristine landscape by the local tourist council.

The environmental nutrient balance around many dairy farms is directly related to the amount of feed brought onto the farm. An addition of 100 more cows to a dairy farm may be necessary to provide income for another family on the farm, it also may result in increased water pollution if manure is applied to a static or decreasing cropland base.

The first complaint against a dairy farm is often related to odor, dust or noise. Regulations and requirements concerning odor are unclear or nonexistent. Options available for prevention and control of odor are often inconsistent, expensive and ineffective.

In an effort to gain relief from a real or perceived problem, water quality concerns often evolve from odor complaints.

Water Pollution

Water pollution concerns from dairy farms include nutrients, organic matter, and microorganisms.

Excess nutrients can result in algae and aquatic weed growth in surface water and elevated nitrates and pH problems in ground water. As organic matter in surface waters decomposes it competes with aquatic life for oxygen.

It can also have adverse effects on the appearance of surface and ground water. Microorganisms, including bacteria and cysts, can adversely affect surface waters and ground waters.

Areas where limestone, creviced bedrock or other features permit direct flow of surface water to ground water require particular care and concern when planning manure storage and handling systems.

Major sources of water pollution on dairy farms include manure application (amount, location and timing of application), barnyard runoff, manure storages (leakage, overflow, failure), milkhouse and milking center wastewater, and silage effluent.

Dairy farms often receive regulatory attention due to traceable flows to streams, lakes and road ditches from milkhouse drains, silos, and barnyards.

Water pollution from these sources is often obvious, readily traced and easily sampled. These sources are usually easily controlled by application of simple technology such as minimizing flow rates and diverting flows away from nearby surface waters.

Silage Effluents

There is increasing concern over silage effluents. This potent waste water has a very high oxygen demand (BOD 12,000-80,000 mg/l) and a low pH (3.6-5). Both of these can upset the balance of life in waters receiving silage effluent.

Larger silos, uncovered horizontal silos, and ensiling of higher moisture silage increase the likelihood and amount of silage effluent.

Silage effluent can be collected and handled with milking center wastewater, exercise lot runoff water or in a liquid manure system.

Mixing silage effluent and liquid manure increases the production of deadly hydrogen sulfide in pump pits and tanks. Therefore use extreme caution when agitating and pumping stored silage effluent. Do not enter collection sumps or underground tanks that are part of the silage effluent handling system.

Safety Concerns

Everyone has an obligation to design, supply, buy, operate and maintain manure storage and handling systems that are safe for workers and visitors.

Manure systems present hazards from asphyxiation, poisoning, drowning, and machinery entanglement and entrapment.

Pumps, pits and tanks can easily contain poisonous gases or lack of oxygen that will not be apparent until someone enters the tank and is overcome.

Multiple deaths have occurred as a result of failure to follow appropriate procedures for working in these confined spaces. Do not enter manure sumps, pits, or storage tanks without appropriate safety apparatus and procedures.

No tool, pump part or farm chore is equivalent in value to the cost of a human life!

Another common hazard is failure to provide adequate guarding at manure tank openings and push off ramps to prevent entry by people, tractor scrapers or cows. All open storages must have adequate fencing to prevent visitors, including small children, from gaining entry.

Environmental Reg.

Environmental quality regulations exist on local, state and national levels.

Regulation at the national level includes the Coastal Nonpoint Pollution Control Program, Farm Bill, Federal Water Pollution Control Act, and Clean Water Act. It is important for dairy managers and advisors to be informed about applicable state and local regulations.

General guidance for handling manure in Pennsylvania is found in the Department of Environmental Resources publication Manure Management for Environmental Protection.

Pennsylvania farmers are also affected by local ordinances (usually health or building code related), Chesapeake Bay Program agreements and the recently passed Nutrient Management Act.

The Nutrient Management Act will require farmers with more than 2,000 pounds of animals per acre to submit a nutrient management plan to their conservation district. Regulations resulting from the Nutrient Management Act are currently under development.

First Opportunity

Farmers often have the first opportunity to protect or pollute our water resources.

Farmers and those advising and serving farmers will be held accountable for the environmental consequences of operating decisions.

Many problems would be minimized or avoided if we all worked harder at being "better neighbors!"

Neighbors may include people next door, down stream, groundwater consumers and our grandchildren.

Just as a great philosopher and teacher taught many years ago, we need to be constantly on the look out for who our neighbor really is.

Clean, safe, environmentally friendly farms that are profitable, and pleasant, and safe to work on, must be the goal of anyone involved with farming.

FAIR DAYS

Kempton Country Fair

Forty years and still going strong — perhaps it's not the oldest nor the biggest, but certainly it is one of the liveliest fairs you'll ever find. And one of the friendliest.

It's the Kempton Country Fair, that opens Friday evening, June 17 and continues through Sunday, June 19.

Located at the Kempton Community Center with Hawk Mountain and rolling hills as a backdrop, where blue skies and fresh air give the feeling of a million miles from nowhere, comes this fantastic weekend of simply good country music, tractor pulls, off-road races, rides, and even a scholarship pageant to select "Es Lieblichst Maedel," the fairest one.

When the gates open at 5 p.m. on Friday, the food stands and other concessions will roll full speed on ahead. And by 6 p.m., the tractors will rumble on the grounds to begin an evening filled with farm stock tractor pulls in three classes — from 5,500 to 15,500 pounds — in a 31-year tradition as well as with single wheel 4x4 sanctioned stock pick-ups, a local 4x4 non-sanctioned class from Lehigh, Berks and Schuylkill counties, and two modified stock sanctioned classes.

But for the music buffs, the evening begins at 7 p.m. under the open air covered stage with Tommy Schaefer and the Blue Mountain Ramblers and Sherry featured on the fiddle. They'll appear again at 9:15 p.m.

At 8:15 and again at 10:15 p.m. Vicki Bird will make her debut in Kempton. Appearing on the Academy of Country Music Awards in Nashville, Video Country and a regular on Hee Haw, her records include "Memories" and "Moaning the Blues." She has appeared in state fairs and festivals over the country.

A display of fireworks will light the sky (in case of rain, they'll be fired off on Saturday) at 11 p.m. — all in celebration of Kempton's 40th anniversary.

Once the fair opens at noon on Saturday, the entertainment is again non-stop. Mountain Madness Off-Road Races begin with Figure 8's at noon, and at 6 p.m. they'll hold drag races. All are sanctioned E.C.4 W.D.A. events.

And, as always, it's Children's Day for kids 14 years old and under. From 1 until 4 p.m., rates on amusement rides are reduced with the same offer being made for Sunday during the same time slot.

At 4 p.m., a bicycle will be presented to a lucky child at an on-stage drawing.

Garfield and Lee, a new duet direct from Nashville, will perform favorite country music at 3 and 5 p.m.

At 6 and again 9:15 p.m., the country Rhythm Band will appear on stage with old and new favorites.

Rex Allen highlights the Saturday evening shows in two programs — 7:15 p.m. and again at 10:15 p.m. with a string of top hits. Allen has one of the most sensational voices on the music scene today. Beginning as a member of the Townsmen, a California folk trio, he quickly established himself as a top talent and moved into solo stands.

The Miss Kempton Fair Scholarship Pageant dominates the Sunday afternoon program. Starting at noon, a bevy of lovely lasses will exhibit their talents, demonstrate poise in individual interviews, and their charm in evening gowns. They'll appear together in an original production number and finally, "Es Lieblichst Maedel," the fairest one, will be crowned and her court presented.

The Mountain Madness Off-Road Races, a sanctioned E.C.4W.D.A. event, will begin at noon in a series of obstacle races.

The Children's Pedal Tractor Pull or teeter-totter has been scheduled for kids 4 to 10 years old at 1 p.m.

The Remnants will appear on the main stage in two Sunday afternoon programs at 4 p.m. and 5:15 p.m. for their very first performance in Kempton.

For 27 years, this top trio, The Whites, have gained a reputation as the new first family in country music. They'll feature some of their best songs at 7 and 9 p.m.

And if the entertainment schedule weren't enough, more than 100 exhibitors will be showing their wares with everything from flea markets to pole buildings, hot tubs, to Pennsylvania Dutch meats and candles, cars and farm implements, and the list goes on.

The food? Well, it's the stuff fairs are made of. Homemade hamburgers, soups and chili made famous by the Kempton Community Center cooks, hot dogs on the grill are available, and other favorites from steak sandwiches to tacos and spun sugar candles are discovered in niches along the midway.

There are the amusement rides and a midway. Truly, there are so many things to see and do that this fair becomes something special.

Manned by volunteers, all proceeds are returned to the Kempton Community Center, a non-profit organization. All entertainment at the fair is free and goes on rain or shine except for tractor pulls and fireworks, which have a Saturday raindate, same time.

Parking is controlled and is free. Admission is $4 per person. Children 6 through 12 are ½ price and children under six are free.

Kempton is located 35 miles north of Reading and 30 miles west of Allentown. Take Rts. 143 or 737 north from I-78 or Rt. 143 from Rt. 309 to Kempton.

For more information, call the Kempton Community Center, Box 43, Kempton, PA 19529, (610) 756-6030.

National FFA Winners Tour Europe

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — For their achievements as national proficiency award winners, 29 FFA members from across the United States will be traveling to Europe for a 12-day seminar.

The award winners, announced last November in Kansas City, Mo., during the 66th National FFA Convention, will be leaving the Washington, D.C., area on June 19. Highlights of the tour include stops in Germany, Poland, and the Czech Republic.

During the seminar, the students will observe typical agricultural practices in Eastern and Western Europe. As a part of their European cultural experience, the FFA members will:

- Visit agricultural cooperatives (collective farms) in the Czech Republic and Germany.
- Explore the city of Berlin.
- Receive a briefing on German agriculture by a member of the Ministry of Food, Agriculture and Forestry.
- Visit small private farms in Poland.
- Visit a Land O'Lakes Development Project near Swionica, Poland.
- Stay with a host family at Grossenhain, Germany (formerly East Germany).
- Visit a former WWII Concentration Camp at Terrazin, in the Czech Republic.
- Have dinner and a social gathering with German Young Farmers at Bayreuth, Germany.

To give them a more accurate taste of European life, the students will stay with host families for part of their trip. They will also participate in the families' daily activities.

Before leaving the National FFA center, the participants will attend a training course by Dr. Charles Vetter, a cross-cultural communications specialist. Vetter's seminar is designed to help the students cope with the communications challenges they will encounter while traveling abroad.

The travel seminar is only one part of each proficiency winner's award package. The seminar, in addition to the cash awards and plaques presented last November, is made possible by business and industry contributions to the National FFA Foundation, Inc.

"American agriculture has a great opportunity today in international trade," said Dr. Larry Case, national FFA advisor, "and we need to be aggressive. There is no substitute for first-hand experience in learning to work with other cultures, and the investment we make today in these top young leaders will help secure our future in the global marketplace."

According to Case, the travel seminar follows closely the goals of the Strategic Plan for Agricultural Education. "This activity is one way the National FFA Organization fulfills some goals of the strategic plan. A global perspective is a vital ingredient in education today. This trip will illustrate the similarities and differences in agriculture worldwide and help these students develop creativity in entrepreneurship."

Accompanying the students on this overseas trip will be National FFA staff members Robert Seefeldt, teacher services specialist and Lawinna McGary, managing editor for FFA New Horizons magazine, as well as Carl Beeman, professor and chairman of Agricultural Education and Communications at the College of Agriculture at the University of Florida, Gainesville. Beeman also serves as a consultant to the National FFA Board of Directors.

Field Day To Feature Ways To Reduce Herbicide Use

BUCK (Lancaster Co.) — The Steve Groff Farm will be the site of a Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture Farm Field Day to look at methods of reducing herbicide rates in a no-till corn system from 9:30 a.m.-noon on July 1.

Groff is experimenting with split application of herbicide in a no-till planting in an effort to lower the amount of material used in his weed control program.

Part of an ongoing demonstration in conjunction with the PASA On-Farm Activities Program, the trial compares weed control using reduced herbicide rates with and without the adjuvant in two different rotations. Also, by splitting the herbicide, the need for a burn-down is eliminated.

From the south on 272, turn left onto Truce Road (after you pass Buck Motor Sports Park). Follow Truce Road two miles then turn left onto Drytown Road. Proceed two and a half miles, farm is on the right.

For more information, call PASA, (814) 349-9856.

Keep The Construction Book, Use It To Prevent Collapse

YORK (York Co.) — As the snow fell this past winter so did a number of buildings, both old and new.

Exceeding the "design snow load" may have caused some to collapse, but many more failures occurred as a result of inadequate bracing, poor connections, and deteriorated building members.

Engineered buildings are designed to withstand "reasonable" forces caused by the wind and snow. The estimated ground snow load is based on a storm with a 50-year recurrence interval.

In Pennsylvania, ground snow load estimates range from 25 to 35 pounds per square foot (psf). However, due to local topography and conditions these estimates may be exceeded.

Reports indicate that the snow loads in some areas exceeded 35 psf this year. Some roofs failed, but many more survived! Other roof systems failed with snow loads less than 25 psf.

Drifting and sliding snow and ice can shift on the roof creating an unbalanced loading situation.

Drifting snow on the leeward side (away from the wind) of the roof is common during the winter. A buildup of ice and snow will also occur where the profile of the roof pitch becomes shallower toward the outside edge. This is common with lean-tos built off of existing buildings.

Established building guidelines are useful in determining building member sizes and connection requirements.

Another problem associated with additional built off of existing buildings is when the addition roof is lower than the eave of the roof of the existing structure. Now the lower roof has to be able to support the weight of the snow coming off half of the existing roof and absorb the impact of the sliding snow when it falls from the upper roof. To accommodate this extra loading larger building members and stronger connections are required.

Bracing the roof system properly allows the building components to work together to resist the forces placed on the structure by snow and wind.

Trusses must remain in a straight and in a vertical plane to function properly. Trusses which are not plumb or bend too far out of the vertical plane are destined to fail.

Proper lateral, diagonal, and web bracing is essential. Design and construction guidelines on bracing should be followed to insure the truss roof system works as a unit.

A roof system is only as good as the connections that hold it up.

In a building, the loading is transferred from the roof cover to the purlins, to the trusses (or rafters), to the header, to the wall support (or post), then to the ground via a footer. In its path from roof to ground the load passes through several connections.

If a connection cannot withstand the forces it fails. Simply adding more nails may not be the answer, in fact it could weaken the connection by damaging the building member. Bolts are often required in post frame construction to support the roof system.

Again, design and construction guidelines should be followed. Reports of some structure failures due to the "winter of '94" found the complete roof system intact, but on the ground, as a result of poor support connections.

Deterioration of building members, of course, weakens the structure. Deterioration is caused by insects, water damage, or inferior wood. Poorly ventilated areas, especially in livestock housing, can cause a building to rot from the inside out.

The winter of '94 has caused a number of people, builders included, to reconsider design snow loads. However, keep in mind that the design and construction guidelines are adequate, but must be followed. Following these guidelines may cost more initially, but can save money, property, and possibly life.

A number of buildings fell victim to the storms of this past winter. However, a great many more remain standing. It is not the time to throw the design book away, just time to follow it.

Lackawanna To Join Farmland Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board approved easement purchases for six farms in four counties, including the first in Lackawanna County.

As a result of the board's action, 605 acres of prime farmland are protected from development in Columbia, Erie, York, and Lackawanna counties.

"We're very pleased to have Lackawanna County as a part of the Farmland Protection Program," said state Agriculture Secretary and Board Chairman Boyd E. Wolff. "There are some good farms in that county that are being threatened by development."

Under the Farmland Protection Program, which began in 1989, the state and counties purchase development rights to guarantee that current farms will remain as agricultural land. Individual landowners apply to county agricultural land preservation boards.

If approved for possible easement purchase, the county boards may request state funding participation. Counties may participate jointly with the state in easement purchases or may purchase easements outright themselves.

Following are the properties approved, listed by county, owner, township, acreage and easement purchase cost:

- Columbia — Gene C. Miller, Locust Township, 103 acres, $96,274.
- Erie — Lee E. and Mary E. Payne, Elk Creek Township, 92 acres, $83,095.
- Erie — Kenneth N. and Shirley J. Rogers, Elk Creek Township, 45 acres, $40,662.
- Erie — Jackson J., Margaret A., Douglas H., and Catherine J. Yost, Venango Township, 161 acres, $112,788.
- Lackawanna — Floyd and Rita Thomas, Madison Township, 31 acres, $49,628.
- York — Willard and Ina Kilgore, Lower Chanceford Township, 173 acres, $172,048.

We Stand Behind Every Axial Flow Combine Reconditioned by Hoober Combine Specialists!

Don Carper Says,

"When a salesman trades an Axle Flow Combine, he has my men prepare a detailed report of everything needed to repair the machine so it is ready to work with no or minimal downtime during the year's grain and corn/bean season. My men and I want the combine fixed right! We're the one's who stand behind it when a farmer buys it"

The CLAAS® Quadrant 1200 square baler—The new standard equipment for commercial operators

CLAAS doesn't have to sell a commercial operator on the advantages he gets from large, densely-packed square bales.

Yes, the Quadrant 1200 delivers the density commercial operators want. Yes, its bales inhibit spoilage by keeping the air out. Yes, they preserve quality because they minimize nutrient loss.

The 1200 also offers the high production capacities you demand. Its 4 ft x 2-1/4 ft x up to 8 ft long bales effectively increase storage space and dramatically increase transport capacities—all at a high productivity rate. And you know what this means to your bottom line.

The Quadrant makes easy work of dry hay, haylage and silage crops—whatever you've got. And it bales as much of it as you've got.

CLAAS's shaft-driven knotters have earned a worldwide reputation for reliability and low maintenance. Other notable features are its 3-stage pre-chamber, 78" wide pickup, powerful transmission, heavy-duty worm gear, 1000rpm pto, hydraulic density control, capacity for up to 24 balls of sisal or plastic twine, and of course 6 dependable CLAAS shaft-driven knotters.

Production capacity. Convenient handling and storage. Economical transport Density and quality. A better bottom line

For more information about the Quadrant and how it can meet your commercial needs, contact the CLAAS dealer listed below.

Incidently, CLAAS quality is also available in a smaller Quadrant model designed for dairy operators.
